New Letters of Napoleon Jews Not the Richest 7 Wonderful Widows He Shot the Poet

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1934, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International copyright and all other rights reserved.

Three hundred and eighteen letters, only one ever heard of before, will be sold in London at Auction. Napoleon wrote them to his second wife, Marie Louise, daughter of the Austrian Emperor, mother of the unfortunate "King of Rome."

In spite of bad spelling and worse grammar, every one of these letters will be read eagerly. Napoleon never wrote a dull letter.

The one in the lot known to historians, intercepted and given to Bluecher, told Bluecher of Napoleon's plan to drive the enemy from Paris by marching toward the Marne. That was what Bluecher wanted to know, and then he sent the letter to Marie Louise later, with an apology for reading it. That letter may have changed the destinies of France and Napoleon.

The old advice: "Never write a letter and never destroy one," contains wisdom.

Mr. Joseph J. Fisko observes that among the "one hundred and eighty-one who had incomes of a million dollars a year during the war, the Jews may be counted on the fingers of one hand." He thinks this interferes with Hitler's theory that members of the Jewish race control the world's money and own most of it.

That theory, of course, is nonsense. There is no Jew among the richest men in the United States, who are, or were until recently, John D. Rockefeller, Andrew W. Mellon, Henry Ford and George F. Baker. In Europe, no Rothschild is any longer "the richest man," although once a Rothschild was the richest.

That means nothing. Each man, working for money, Jew or Gentile, makes as much as he can, because that is the game that is being played. But, whether it means that Gentiles are smarter than the Jews because they are richer men is doubtful.

Einstein has no money. Spinoza, a Holland Jew of Spanish descent, one of the world's greatest thinkers, left a fairly good bedstead and a silver handled knife. That was the bulk of his estate. Abraham Lincoln had no money, Newton had none, Keppler depended on the kindness of Tycho Brahe, another great astronomer, to save him from abject poverty.

Mrs. Geneve Forbes Herrick, head of the Woman's Press club in Washington, makes a list of the seven most prominent widow ladies in Washington's political and social life, and here it is, let the chips fall where they may.

"Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth continues to be the most alluring widow in Washington.'

The other six are Mrs. Isabella Greenway, prettiest, Mrs. Florence Kahn, wittiest, Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, wealthiest; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. William Howard Taft, historically most prominent, and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman politically most intelligent.

Which do you think 999 out of 1000 women would rather be called? We think they would rather be called "prettiest," like Mrs. Isabella Greenway. The 1000th would rather be called "kindest." She would be 65 or older.

Lamar Hollingshead admired the young wife of Judson C. Doke, and told her so in poetry. He admired too much, and Mr. Doke dried up the fount of poetry with one bullet.

A jury of 11 men and one woman acquitted Doke on "unwritten law," and the courtroom cheered. The judge had told the jury: "The law provides ample redress for a person finding his

White House to Serve Beer at Christmas Parties

L. A. MAYBERRY HEARING ON

BEER, PUNCH TO APPEAR AT TABLE

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 17—Beer will be served at White House young people's Christmas parties again this year.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said so today in answering a reporter's question.

Another questioner asked: "Will the beer be served out of a barrel?"

The President's wife answered that she did not have the slightest idea and considered the matter immaterial.

Fruit punch also will be served, she said.

TWO INJURED IN BLAST, FIRE

A man was badly burned and a fireman was injured today when a fire, caused by explosion of a heater, caused $2500 damage in the single family dwelling at 1 Pearl street, Somerville.

J. P. Burke, 70, opened a kitchen door and a gust of wind caused the heater to explode, showering him with burning oil. His two sons, Thomas and Philip, heard the screams and carried him out. He was treated by a nearby doctor for burns of the hands and face.

Edward J. Donovan, aid to District Deputy Chief Horace Hutchins, was cut on the face by falling timber He was taken to a hospital.

Boy of 8 Admits School Blaze

Worcester, December 17—An eight-year-old boy today told police that it was he who had opened 30 gas jets in the Winslow street school last Thursday, and then set two fires in the building, threatening not only it, but the whole neighborhood with destruction.

Unwilling to believe his story at first, the authorities twice asked him to re-enact what he did that night.

Still not quite convinced that his "confession" was not prompted by his imagination, the police released the boy to his parents.

2-Way Traffic on Washington Urged

Mayor Mansfield today announced that he would recommend to the traffic commission that Washington street be made two-way between Broadway and Kneeland streets.

The mayor said he would also ask that more street lights be placed in that section. He made his decision after a conference with representatives of the Washington Street Improvement Association headed by William Pease O'Brien.

SCHOOL SHUT BY VANDALS IN ROXBURY

More than 200 pupils of the Charles Bulfinch grammar school, Fisher avenue and Parker street, Roxbury, were sent home today when the school was found to have been entered by vandals during the week-end.

All the school records, including report cards and history records of the children, were taken from the desk of Miss Anna T. McCloskey.

Ink wells were thrown against walls and books and papers were torn to shreds in the five classrooms.

The damage was discovered by Joseph Doherty of Fisher avenue, custodian of the school. He found entrance was gained through windows broken on the first floor.

After questioning many of the pupils, police took into custody three 13-year-old boys and the brother of one, who is only eight. They said the boys admitted they had broken in to do the damage.

All were given into custody of their parents pending action in juvenile court.

At the William Bacon school, Vernon street, Roxbury, school officials reported to police that someone had entered the school during the week-end and stolen clothing valued at $10.

The clothing was the property of Miss Mary Blanchard, teacher.

MR. HEARST on Japan and the Philippines

The following statement was given by William Randolph Hearst to the correspondent of a French newspaper, in reply to the question:—

What do you think about the question of the Philippines (Japanese danger)?

I DO not think there was any "Japanese danger," at least as far as the United States is concerned, as long as the United States was willing to retain and fortify the Philippines.

But when the United States abandons the Philippines, the "Japanese danger" to our country becomes exceedingly real.

Japan then can take the Philippines, and WILL take them; and Japan will FORTIFY them, develop their rich natural resources and permanently hold them.

By the acquisition of the Philippines, the man

Boston Deb Sweeps Court to Cut Fine

For a few fleeting minutes today a Boston society girl became temporarily janitress in a combination courthouse and police station in Rockville, Ct.

With the police station broom, Miss Nora L. Bullitt partly made her amends to Connecticut justice for driving at 65 miles an hour on the way from her Boston home, Marlboro street, Back Bay, to the Louisville, Ky., home of her parents.

In addition, Miss Bullitt paid a fine of $10 and court costs of $11.31.

The broom-swinging followed a long wait for the appearance of Justice John E. Fisk. Miss Bullitt and a companion smoked many cigarettes. The butts littered the floor when Justice Fisk arrived.

The court flushed angrily. Then he turned to the young society girl and announced:

A broom was produced and Miss Bullitt set to work with vigor.

CETRONE GETS NEW TRIAL

After serving more than a year of a 12 to 15 year sentence in State Prison as an accessory to assault with intent to murder, Pasquale Cetrone, 46, Newton contractor, was granted a new trial today by Judge Walter I. Collins.

Through a quirk in the case, Cetrone may go free. New evidence has been produced which may change the alleged offence from a felony to a misdemeanor and there is no accessory to a misdemeanor in the eyes of the law.

Cetrone was convicted after armed assault on Attorney John Finelli of Watertown in June, 1933.

The new evidence will attempt to prove that Cetrone, in hiring a man to administer a beating to Finelli, did not intend that he should be murdered, although the injuries he received nearly caused his death.

SECRET POLICE IN BERLIN RAIDS

By Associated Press

Berlin, Dec. 17—Widespread secret police raids in Berlin during the last two days against indecency and immorality were revealed by a high official today.

He said the campaign had been conducted by districts but that he was unable to give the number of arrests. He said there was no political significance to the raids, and that they were merely a cleanup campaign.

EX-JURYMAN TESTIFIES TO 'FIXING' BY CONVICT

The first witness called by the government today as it opened disbarment proceedings for the second time against Lowell A. Mayberry, Boston lawyer, identified John Donnelly, now serving eight to 12 years in State Prison, as an alleged intermediary between Mayberry and himself in at least two alleged instances of jury fixing in 1932.

The witness, called to the stand before Judge Henry T. Lummus, of Supreme Judicial Court, was James S. McCann, of Orchard street, Jamaica Plain, a member of the Suffolk Superior Court jury which in October of 1932 heard the case of Wilcox vs. Smythe.

This is one of the six cases, covering a two-year period from 1930 to 1932, in which the government charges Mayberry was guilty of irregularities.

These charges, made as the result of an investigation by Dunbar F. Carpenter, special commissioner appointed by the court to investigate alleged irregularities in the Boston bar, were first pressed against Mayberry a year ago last October.

Those proceedings resulted in Mayberry's exoneration, as McCann and another witness were unable to identify a picture of Donnelly. Other witnesses refrained from testifying on the ground they might incriminate themselves.

POINTS OUT MAN

Today, however, McCann identified the man without hesitation when Donnelly, who had been brought from Charlestown on a writ of habeas corpus, rose from his seat.

"That's the man," said McCann.

90 BUSINESS LEADERS OPEN 'CONFERENCE FOR RECOVERY'

SEEK TO GET COMMERCE AND U. S. UNIFIED ON NEW PLANS

By Associated Press

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Dec. 17—A contest to determine the extent to which American Commerce can "go along" with the Roosevelt administration began today as 90 business leaders began a "business conference for recovery."

The executives met on the call of the National Association of Manufacturers and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States as an outgrowth of many separate meetings proposing to bring business together.

Already it was evident that the many conferees were in the throes of controversy, with so many divergent opinions represented that unanimity of a program seemed distant —yet with the executives determined to achieve that objective.

THREE OBJECTIVES

The conference divided itself into nine different committees with three general objectives discernable in the tentative program:

"First to work out methods of co-operation with the government, if possible; second, to unify business opinion on the theory that "united we stand, divided we fall;" third, to construct forces able to oppose "wild" legislation.

The lines of the controversy were set out in the naming of the committees. It was said authoritatively that most of the conferees could agree broadly on the following theories:

1—Recognition that an immediately balanced budget is impossible. But that specific objectives should be set up by the administration to enable business certainty.

2—Continuance of NRA, possibly for another temporary period.

3—Recognition of the right of labor to organize, but insistence on protection of both labor and employers from any coercion.

4—Admission of the practicability of unemployment insurance protection, but plea for further consideration of methods and objectives.

BIG LEADERS PRESENT

The significance of the meeting was evidenced by the prominence of the members. They included Owen D. Young, General Electric Co.; Henry J. Harriman, president of the chamber; Robert L. Lund, chairman of the Manufacturers Association; Robert V. Fleming, vice-president of the American Bankers Association; John J. Raskob, General Motors; Lammot duPont, E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co.; George Mead, chairman of the NRA industrial advisory board, and others.

Steel Industry in $100,000,000 Program

By Associated Press

Cleveland, Dec. 17—A $100,000,000 program of new equipment is today's answer of the steel industry to the contention five years ago that it was then already far overbuilt.

The biggest item is that of the United States Steel Corporation, which has pledged $40,000,000 worth of modernization in the coming year.

Another $10,000,000 is involved in new steel production equipment for the Ford Motor Company, now in progress. National Steel Corporation has announced a $12,000,000 expansion for its subsidiary, the Great Lakes Steel Corporation.

Carnegie Steel is building a mill at Youngstown, O., and Bethlehem is planning another at Buffalo.

Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company is completing a $7,000,000 mill at its Campbell, O., works, and nearby the Republic Steel Corporation is spending $500,000.

Praise and Doubt Over "Human Welfare" Plan

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 17—A gigantic plan for America's natural resources, proposed to President Roosevelt as a means of distributing "human welfare" through the land, stirred a mixture of praise and doubt on Capitol Hill today.

While some described the report of the President's national resources board as "very progressive" and "excellent," others expressed doubt about the wisdom of a permanent public works administration, which the board suggested.

Many, including regular republican leaders, withheld comment pending more study of the 100,000-word report on a long-range plan for the nation's land, water and mineral wealth, which included these salient points:

An expansion of subsistence homesteading with a further decentralization of industry.

Ford Aid Sees New High-Wage Level

Detroit, Dec. 17—The confident prediction that "we haven't seen any real wages yet" was voiced from the Ford Motor Company today coincident with the opening of private conferences by President Roosevelt's three man board of inquiry into automobile labor's demands for a shorter work week and an annual wage minimum.

Better'n Nasty Ol' Oil, Huh?"

It's bread and jam that one-year-old Bobby Barry of Walker street, Charlestown, is tackling now by way of dessert after a meal which started with several hearty swigs of range oil. His mother found him draining a bottle of the fuel, called police, and had him rushed to the Haymarket Relief Station. Now here's Bobby home again, hungry again, and happy, this time, to be able to satisfy that appetite of his with something more tasty that petroleum. "Petey," the cat, with his own milk safe in his "tummy," is able to look on sympathetically. (Picture by Boston Evening American Photographer.)

RANGE OIL DIET LANDS BOY IN HOSPITAL

At the tender age of one year, Robert Barry of 66 Walker street, Charlestown, picked a rugged diet today and went to Haymarket Relief station.

The boy had consumed several gulps of range oil from a bottle in the kitchen of his home when his mother, Mrs. Chuffie Barry, noticed him.

Doctors administered to Robert and announced that he would recover.

New Police Signals

Installation of the red light police recall system, started today in Everett. Red lights will be located at prominent points so that signals may be flashed to patrolmen from police headquarters.

GREEN DEMANDS MORE TEETH IN NRA

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 17—A demand for more teeth in the new NRA, empowering it to force reluctant industries into line in a drive for "economic Democracy," has just been voiced by the recovery unit's labor advisory board, headed by William Green.

Declaring there had been "outstanding failures" under NRA to achieve such Democracy, the advisers told the administrative board, headed by Clay Williams, that it is not enough to rely on "voluntary action" by industry.

They said in a memorandum:

"The experience so far shows that this can only result in stalemates or deliberate inaction in many important industries."

"We recommend that the act be amended to give power to a special board, on which labor shall have equal representation, to impose labor codes on any industry which has not voluntarily presented an acceptable code, to make amendments to any code which, in the board's judgment, requires amendment, and to apply Section 7-A of the act to any industry, trade or group which has not been codified."

Asking minimum wages for all workingmen, the board sought labor representation on all code authorities and better compliance machinery.

Moves to Wakefield

Wakefield will have another new industry the first of the new year when the United Sportswear Co. of Newburyport will locate its plant in a part of the former Heywood Brothers & Wakefield Co. factory.

Barbara Hutton, Real Princess, Aids Needy

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 17—A real-life princess, Barbara Hutton Mdivani, stepped out of her story-book existence to assure a Merry Christmas for 10,000 needy.

In response to an open letter from Ed Sullivan, Broadway columnist—a letter that made her cry —she contributed a $5000 check for a "Princess Barbara Christmas dinner" for New York's poor children and their parents.

Sullivan said in his letter:

"Friends of mine tell me that you are a pretty swell girl.

"I've got an idea that will make it possible for quite the grandest Christmas that you've ever enjoyed. How about establishing an annual Princess Barbara Christmas dinner for some of the poor of New York city?

"Come on, princess, what do you say?"

The princess said it with a check, brought by her broker to Sullivan as he made his Broadway rounds.

"Dear Princess Mdivani, you're the top," he wrote today.

"Your $5000 check means a merrier Christmas to the 10,000 poor who didn't believe in Santa Claus.

"I' told me that you cried when you read the column because it was the first time any writer ever had raised his voice in print to say that you were regular . .

"He said to play the gift down, and this will be done. In the mean time, thanks . . . I think you're a swell princess, the kind of a Princess we read about in story books—You're just swell!"

"Come on, Princess, what do you say? Be regular," challenged a Broadway columnist. And Princess Barbara Hutton Mdivani said yes. She signed a check for $5000 to buy a Christmas dinner for poor.

U.S. IN HUNT FOR SIEGEL KILLER

The men who got Dillinger, Floyd and Nelson, today went after the slayers of Nate Siegel, former boxer and Revere night club operator.

Acting on orders from J. Edgar Hoover, director of investigation in the United States Department of Justice, Special Agent Clarence W. McKee was to confer with Revere war veterans in the first federal anti-crime drive in Massachusetts.

His work will supplement that of Revere and state police, whose failure to turn up the Siegel slayers prompted an appeal to Washington by John A. Chisholm Camp, U. S. V.

In a resolution sent to President Roosevelt, Attorney General Cummings and both Massachusetts senators, the veterans intimated that officials knew who instigated the Siegel killing, but were not anxious to break the case. Siegel was slain by a shotgun blast fired through the window of his Revere home. At the time it was hinted that his failure to buy the "right" kind of beer for his establishment was the motive for the crime.

Revere, Fall River to Vote Tomorrow

When Revere and Fall River go to the polls tomorrow, a record number of ballots is expected to be cast for mayor and other municipal officials.

In Revere, Mayor Andrew A. Casassa, seeking a fourth term, is opposed by City Treasurer James A. O'Brien. In Fall River the contest will be between City Manager Alexander C. Murray and former Mayor Edmond P. Talbot.

SAAR SHOOTING BRINGS CLIMAX IN HOSTILITY

By Associated Press

Saarbruecken, Dec. 17—The shooting of a Saarlander yesterday in a clash between a crowd and a British Captain of Saar Civil Police brought the friction between foreign police officers and Saar inhabitants sharply to a head today.

Hostility reached the boiling point when Captain James Justice and an English lord, with a German girl, were mobbed and beaten, after the shooting.

Geoffrey G. Knox, Chief Commissioner of Saar basin territory, began a personal investigation.

Prince Hubertus von Lowenstein, a German exile, complained he had ben insulted by British officers in a cafe where Captain Arthur C. Helmsley of England, Chief of the Saar Civil Police, was present. Helmsley is a close friend of Knox.

Berlin, Dec. 17—German officials said today:

"We are counselling discipline to the people of the Saar but, of course, cannot guarantee order will be kept."

The German version of yesterday's incident accuses Captain Hemsley of dancing on a cafe table in the presence of Captain James Justice, a principal in the fight, shortly before the trouble developed.

London, Dec. 17—Great Britain, with the "first shot" in the Saar fired by a Briton, waited today for a full investigation.

The mother of Captain James Justice, 29, a principal in the disorder, said he formerly was continental manager of the racing stable maintained by a member of the wealthy Whitney family of the United States.

The Countess Aylesford, grandmother of Lord Aylesford who received a black eye in the fight, said he was in the Saar "just out of curiosity."

FIREBUG HUNT IN CHELSEA

Chelsea police and fire authorities today were investigating two minor fires, both believed of incendiary origin. But for their prompt discovery, the flames might have caused considerable damage, officials said.

One of the fires was at 52 Chester avenue. The place was occupied by Joseph Glassman and his family.

At 21 Lynn street, in the same neighborhood, a $30 baby carriage was destroyed by fire caused by a tin can full of oil-soaked rags. The carriage belonged to John Tucan.

power of Japan will be increased about 20 per cent, and the legitimate naval necessities of Japan will be increased to the degree necessary to protect the whole Japanese empire, which will then include the Philippine Islands.

That man power and sea power will be available to Japan for any purpose it pleases.

When will Japan occupy the Philippines?

When the opportunity offers, just as she occupied Manchukuo at the psychological moment.

Certainly she will not rush in the day after the United States leaves, but will wait until the United States is occupied in some one of its foolish adventures into European disturbances—a fatuous procedure which has now become the habit of this nation.

You may be sure that the moment that Japan will choose will be a moment admirably selected to enable Japan to carry out her designs with no opposition from the United States, other than the customary futile protest such as we made, together with other nations, in regard to the Manchukuo occupation.

Will the government of the United States be supine under occupation of this former United States territory by Japan?

Will the Congress be so blind as not to sense the danger of that occupation, or the danger inherent in the advance of the Japanese empire through the Philippines, Guam, and the mandated islands toward the coast of California?

Japan and the rest of the world may rest assured that the United States will do nothing but file vain and empty protests.

A nation so lacking in statesmanship as to abandon the Philippines, so lacking in vision as to the consequences of that abandonment, so lacking in pride and patriotism as to countenance that abandonment, would not have the virile qualities necessary to offer an effective resistance to Japanese occupation of the islands, and would not have the intelligence to foresee EVEN THEN the menace to the peace and security of the West Coast of this country which that occupation involves.

In order to understand the utter lack of broad national statesmanship in the United States, you must understand the operation of our form of government—you must understand the essential provincialism in our Congress, the narrow limitations of congressional interest and intelligence.

The mind of a congressman is no broader than his district. He thinks of little or nothing beyond his district. He is genuinely interested in nothing but his own re-election from his district.

His one object is to please the people of his district, and he is not concerned seriously with the broader requirements of the nation.

Tim Sullivan, a Tammany Hall congressman from the Bowery district of New York, was once sarcastically referred to as the "Daniel Webster of the Bowery."

He replied that he might not be a Daniel Webster, but he knew more about his Bowery district than Daniel Webster ever did.

That retort was considered a sound and sufficient one. All that a congressman had to know, in the opinion of the other members of Congress, was his district.

All that a congressman DOES know is his district.

A man with an acre of sugar beets in a congressman's district is more important to that congressman than all the wealth, all the commerce, all the strategic advantage to the nation of the Philippines.

A congressman's statesmanship is limited to the requirements of his district, his vision to the confines of his district.

Let the rest of the country take care of itself; the congressman's business is to take care of HIMSELF.

Congress has shown already how little vision it has with regard to the Philippines.

There is no reason to believe that it will ever have more.

Its foresight is nil, and nothing will make its aftersight and afterthought any keener except the actual disastrous consequences which a conflict with Japan might precipitate.

Alfred Henry Lewis once said that Congress was like a man riding backwards in a train; it never sees anything until after it is passed.

The simile is good except that Congress does not always see the thing even after it is passed.

I do not think that Congress will realize the seriousness of abandoning the Philippines now or after the abandonment is concluded, or even after an occupation by Japan.

Nothing but a descent of the Japanese fleet on the West Coast of America will make Congress come to its senses; or rather to such senses as it has.

Is not this an indictment of American democracy?

It is to a degree.

The minor units of government are too important in our American system of government, and the central unit of too little importance.

We have outgrown our present form of city government, county government, district government, state government. We need a system remodeled to suit modern conditions.

President Roosevelt has said that much in our minor units of government belongs to the days of the ox-cart, and today is the day of the automobile —more than that even, the day of the aeroplane.

A mail and passenger line of aeroplanes is now at this moment being projected to Hawaii, to the Philippines, and on to the Orient.

The Philippine frontier of this nation, or what was the Philippine frontier, will be in 1935 within 24 hours of the coast of California—a day's ride on the wings of the wind.

And it is just as short a distance from the Philippines to California as it is from California to the Philippines.

That is something which our provincial representatives at Washington cannot realize—24 hours from California to the Philippines by American aeroplane, 24 hours from the Philippines to California by Japanese aeroplane.

Our congressmen should think about that, if they think.

They should also remember that within the lifetime of a man the coast of California, then the frontier of this country, was 30 times farther off from Washington than the frontier of the Philippines is today.

It took 60 to 90 days to go from Missouri to California in the days of the ox-cart; and mind you, our government belongs to the days of the ox-cart.

It does not realize that it would take less than two days to go in aeroplanes from Washington to the Philippines now; and again that important supplementary fact, less than two days to go from the Philippines to Washington by friendly or HOSTILE aeroplanes.

It is distressing and perhaps even disastrous for this country to have an ox-cart system of government; but we have it.

If we had a system of government of the date of the aeroplane, or even of the automobile, we never would have abandoned the Philippines. We would have had too high a grade of representation in Washington to make that disastrous and disloyal mistake possible.

A country cannot be any bigger than the minds of the men who run it, and if we are going to continue to have men of narrow minds, limited to the confines of their districts, in Washington, we may have before we get through a smaller nation than we have now rather than a greater nation.

For many glorious years our nation grew in territory, in prestige, in power.

With the abandonment of the Philippines it began for the first time to shrink; and when a nation begins shrinking, there is no knowing when it will stop.

MALE BABIES IN HOLLYWOOD TAKE LEAD

By International News Service

Hollywood, Dec. 17—The boys win.

And by a margin of nearly three to one.

Birth of a curly-haired, 7½-pound son to Clara Bow Sunday was the 11th boy to be born to Hollywood screen couples, stork statistics for 1934 revealed today.

During the year, to date, four girls arrived to gladden homes of cinema celebrities.

Both the mother, famous "It" girl of motion pictures, and the boy were doing splendidly in Santa Monica hospital, while Rex Bell, the cowboy father, who paced the floor through the night at the hospital, was reported "doing as well as could be expected."

Both Rex and Clara were especially happy that their first child was a son.

A pony already waits his first "giddap" and a brand-new nursery at their ranch home will receive the newcomer within a very short time.

Girls Take Lead

It looked as though the girls were going to win the Hollywood stork race by a wide margin when the year started. First arrived Melinda at the home of Joan Bennett and Gene Markey last February.

Then came Mary Caroline to grace the home of Dorothy Jordan and Merian C. Cooper.

Margaret Avourten boosted the score for the girls when she came to the home of Patricia and Pat O'Brien.

But a son at the home of Lina Basquette and Teddy Hayes put the boys back in the running.

Then Came Twins

A daughter at the home of Maxine Dailey Lewis and Donald Cook made the score four to two in favor of the ladies.

Dennis Michael and Philip Lang, twin arrivals July 13 at the home of Dixie Lee and Bing Crosby, turned the tide definitely in favor of the boys.

WANTS SANTA IN OWN CHIMNEY

EX-PRESIDENT MAY SPEND DAY AT SON'S HOME

Stanford University, Cal., Dec. 17 — Because little Joan Hoover "would kind of like to have Santa Claus come down her own chimney," the Christmas gathering of the former President's family this year may be in the Sierra Madre home of the Herbert Hoover, Jrs.

It isn't certain yet, because plans in the Hoover House aren't made ahead of time, Mrs. Hoover tells her friends.

Only one thing about it is sure—the eight members of the immediate family, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, their two sons, a daughter-in-law, and the three grandchildren, all will be together.

However the matter is decided, the voice of the former Chief Executive of the land probably will be no greater than that of his youngest grandchild, Joan, who is "going on five," and still starry-eyed at mention of the magic name of St. Nick.

Joan's sister, Peggy Ann, now big enough to delight her grandmother by becoming a Girl Scout "Brownie," and her brother, Peter (Herbert Hoover III), the "middle one," both smile a bit patronizingly over St. Nicholas, Mrs. Hoover has confided to friends.

But none of the three yet has had a Christmas in the Sierra Madre home, for holiday-time has been in far places as well as at the White House. Mrs. Hoover, Jr., rather favors the Sierra Madre plan.

Is It Love? Hollywood Asks Greta

GARBO CHANGES MIND; BRENT SEEN CAUSE

By Associated Press

Hollywood, Dec. 17—Out of the disclosure that the great Garbo intends to stay in Hollywood to continue her picture career, came the news that Greta and George Brent, divorced husband of Ruth Chatterton, have struck up a close acquaintanceship.

The film colony hesitated to go on record as saying it meant a romance, but predicted freely that the two would be seen together more and more.

If this is true, it may explain why a "spokesman" for Greta has announced the Swedish actress has no intention of returning to her native country to devote her talents to the legitimate stage.

There have been reports that Garbo was tired of Hollywood and planned to appear in Strindberg plays in Stockholm.

Last spring Greta and Rouben Mamoulian, screen director, were reported to have eloped to Arizona to be married, but both came back to Hollywood denying they were married.

First Quintuplet Christmas Santa Without Whiskers

DR. DAFOE BACK IN NORTHLAND, AUTO CRAMMED WITH GIFTS

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

Callander, Ont., Dec. 17—A Santa Claus without whiskers but a real Santa Claus just the same came today, through the snow-dressed Northland, to the Dionne quintuplets.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, though he has brought 1,400 children into the world—the cold, bleak world that settles down upon Callander's countryside at Christmas time—has never had as happy a Yule-season chore as that upon which he entered today.

Just back from New York and its gift-crammed shops, Dr. Dafoe piled his motor car high with bundles for the drive to the hospital down whose chimney Santa Claus must slide for his first visit to the five famous daughters of Ovila Elzire Dionne.

Everything a Christmas pack should hold was in the doctor's car. There were dolls and rattles, toy rabbits, lifelike dogs, teething rings, and a man on a flying trapeze. There were elephants and bonnets, a toy grand piano, bobbies, and just lots of sweaters to keep five tiny babies warm in the cold northern winter.

Dolls predominated: "Quintuplet" dolls, five in a row, and "cuddly" dolls that are soft to hold; and there were dolls that say "mamma" when you squeeze them—but none that say "doctor." Some dolls were as big as Yvonne, who is the largest of the five girls. Others were so small that even the smallest quintuplet, Marie, could hold them.

The doctor arranged to talk Christmas Day plans over today with Mrs. Dionne, the 26-year-old mother of the quintuplets. There will be a family party at the hospital Christmas Day at which Dr. Dafoe and the nurses will join Mr. and Mrs. Dionne and the five older Dionne children at a turkey dinner.

Ovila Dionne, the 31-year-old father, who is the "forgotten man" of Callander's epochal natal event, has been looking about through the woods for a Christmas tree.

Christmas dinner will be at noon, with turkey and trimmings, but for the five heroines there will only be the usual cereal and milk.

WEDDING

Mrs. Dahl Silent

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 17—There was neither affirmation nor denial in the White House today of a report that Mrs. Anna Dall, daughter of the President, will marry John Boettiger, former member of the Chicago Tribune staff.

The rumor was stirred by Boettiger's resignation from his position on the Tribune to take a position in New York.

His Banquet

Kills Wife, "Serves" Flesh to Friends

By Associated Press

Bucharest, Dec. 17—Out of the grim Backwoods of Northern Rumania, where the peasants still live in medieval ignorance, today came the Macabre story of a practical joke that will cost its perpetrator his life.

Nicholas Stefan, a farmer of the Village of Onitianti, invited all his wife's relatives and friends to a feast.

But the guests observed that Mme. Stefan was absent; they noticed the curious taste and appearance of the meat, neatly garnished with vegetables; and they saw that Stefan did not partake.

They paled at the terrible conclusion, and summoned police. The authorities found that Stefan had killed his wife and he and his alleged mistress, Eufosine Ghibu, had cooked some of the flesh and served it to the guests. The remainder of the body was found in the kitchen.

Irate villagers attempted to lynch the man and woman. Stefan will die, Mlle. Ghibu will recover.

13 MOTHERLESS CHILDREN ASK YULE BASKET

Thirteen motherless children ! '

Last year on Christmas Day they had bread, potatoes and tea.

This year they appeal to you Goodfellows of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund to make this one day in the year a happy one.

The letter is written by one of the boys in the family. He asks that his family won't be forgotten.

"Won't you please hear the plea of 13 motherless children My mother died three years ago and left 13 children, one a small baby a few weeks old.

"My father has not worked for three years, although he has tried everywhere for something to do. My oldest sister, who is 21 years old, and the one who takes care of us. She tries to do the best she can to make both ends meet, but sometimes I see her crying when we are all in bed, I know that she is thinking of a loving mother who has left us to go to the angels above, for a mother such as we had is hard to forget."

This 14-year-old boy lives in Chelsea. You Goodfellows may do your part and call the Christmas Basket Editor for the name of this family. Call Liberty 4000 and refer to this case as No. 54.

MANY APPEALS

Other destitute families write for help, too. Not all the letters can be published. Only those picked at random from the thousands of appeals are used for publication.

There are eight more days left. Do all you can. And at once.

Among those who answered the call and did their bit today was A. K. K. of Brookline, a woman, who sent her check for $100. She writes that it is her "annual privileges." This woman is the widow of a late department store owner in Boston.

MORE CHECKS

From a writer who signs his letter with an "H" comes a check for $50. And from the Boston Linen Club, Inc., the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket editor received $25. This check was sent by F. Hilliard Young, executive secretary of the organization.

Those who wish to make contributions in person may see the Christmas Basket Fund editor or his assistant at 294 Dorchester street, near Summer street. And those desiring to inquire into special cases may call on the telephone or come to the office personally.

LEGION WOMEN TO AID NEEDY

The women's committee for the annual Christmas work conducted by the Crossetup Pishon post of the American Legion has been organized, with Mrs. Claude S. Hartwell as chairman.

The committee, co-operating with the general chairman, George W. B. Britt, is planning bridge parties and other social events to raise money for the purchase of dolls, toys and other gifts for the families of needy veterans.

Other members of the committee are Mrs. Alex Kennedy, Mrs. Earl Dempsey, Mrs. Frank McCarthy, Mrs. Ida O'Brien, Mrs. August Hirschbaum, Mrs. John Reddy, Mrs. Lindley Bond, Mrs. Frank Lally, Mrs. R. H. Grear and Mrs. Thomas Fallon.

Jobless Fathers Ask Aid for Children

Christmas is drawing nearer and still the pitiful appeals pour in. Here are the latest cases on the long list of those to which Goodfellows will want to bring happiness on Christmas Day, through the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

CASE 55

I would be very grateful to you if you could help me this Christmas, as I have 11 children and have no husband, and don't get any welfare from anyone. Six of the children are only babies. I have two of the children working as order boys, and they receive very small pay, one gets $9 and the other $5 a week. Of this, $6.50 goes for rent and $2 for milk for a sick baby.

So hoping you can make Christmas a little more cheerful for my children. Hoping God will bless you and hoping to hear from you, I remain, a mother very much in need.

This mother lives in Somerville. Anyone wishing to help her may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and asking for case No. 56.

CASE 56

Please send us a Christmas basket. We are without food and heat. I am a widow with five children. Their father deserted us all over five years ago. I've got ely aid up until last August, when I tried to work, bringing in not over $10 a week. We barely have enough to eat, and a week ago I cut the top off one of my fingers and cannot work for a few weeks. Please help us. We don't get any help at all.

Any kind of clothing will be welcomed, or if you could find a job for my girls, ages 18 and 17, the other children are small. We can't even pay rent. I don't know what to do. Please help us. A sad mother who wishes you won't forget her children.

This mother lives in Roxbury. Anyone wishing to help her may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor at Liberty 4000 and asking for case No. 56.

I wonder if you could possibly send my family a basket? I have been unable to work for two years on account of sickness. I have a wife and six children from two years, a boy of 12 years, then there is a girl, 10 and another 9, then 5 years, also a boy 8, and they all need shoes and clothing to keep them warm as we have no coal or wood to keep the house warm.

I am a disabled war veteran and received a small soldier's aid allowance, which is not enough to half take care of my family. My wife and three of the children and also myself have been in the hospital this past 12 months and I have to return to the hospital next month for another operation, so you can see what a tough Christmas it will be for my six dear children unless someone can come to our aid, so I hope and pray that you will be able to remember us with a basket.

This man lives in Avon. Anyone wishing to help him may do so by calling the Christmas Basket editor, Liberty 4000, and asking for Case No. 57.

CASE 58

Don't know how to start this letter but on account of my children and wife must do it. Haven't worked for almost two years now, and haven't had one day's pay come into the house except what little the welfare allows me. Can't even send them to school now since the cold spell hit Boston and they only have what little summer clothes we own. Can't afford to buy clothes and it is all we can do to keep body and soul together by buying food for them. Have had an operation in City Hospital, February, 1933, and since then been on the welfare.

There will be no Christmas for us, if you don't remember us. Here is the size for the children if you can do anything for us. The boy is 7½ years old and wears size 8, all his clothes, shoes size 11. The girl is 6½ years old and wears size 7 in clothes, shoes 10½. The baby is two months old and as yet haven't a crib for her.

An investigator can always find us home and can see how tough things are with us. Hate to be a cry-baby, but I can't stand to see my children suffer on my account.

This father lives in the South End. Anyone wishing to help him may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 58.

Gala Cocoanut Grove Show to Aid Basket Fund

Not to be outdone by the other Goodfellows and organizations, the famed Cocoanut Grove in Piedmont street, off Broadway, will play Santa Claus next Sunday night with another big Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund show.

A huge success was the show at the Brown Derby last night, and so was the show at the Mayfair a week ago last night, but next Sunday night's show, it was declared today by Barnett Welansky, the Grove director, will be the biggest Boston has yet seen.

The complete floor show of the Grove, featuring Jacques Renard and his orchestra, will be seen, augmented by a sparkling lineup of radio and stage stars.

DINNER AT 8

Dinner will start at 8 p. m. and the floor show will run from 10 p. m. until midnight, with dancing from midnight until 2 a. m.—and all for only $2.50 a person.

There will be more details later, but, meanwhile, several organizations will hold shows and parties during the week in aid of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund for the needy and unfortunate at Yuletide.

SOUTH BOSTON SHOW

Tomorrow night the Alfred E. Smith Club of South Boston will hold a big vaudeville show at the Municipal Building in South Boston.

President Martin J. Quinn and Representative Robert V. Lee head the committee for the club.

There will be two parties on Wednesday night. One will be sponsored by the Paisley-Waisey Club, which already has held one for the Christmas Basket Fund at the same location, the New Normandie Ballroom in Washington street, on the site of the old B. F. Keith Theater.

DANCING PARTY

The other Wednesday night benefit will be a dancing party in Robert Burns Hall, Berkeley street, South End, under the auspices of Arthur "Red" Harrison.

On Thursday, the Greater Boston Chapter No. 44, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, and its auxiliary, will hold its Pasay-Wonderbridge and whist party.

Plans for the midnight show at Minsky's Park Theater for the Basket Fund and school children's shoes are practically complete. When the curtain rises on Friday night, December 21, every dollar that has entered the box office for the benefit performance will be distributed to the needy of Boston.

Evangeline Booth Spurns 'Marriage'

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Dec. 17 (AP)—Evangeline Booth, 68-year-old new commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, says a Chicago man proposed to her there recently, but she turned him down.

General Booth said the Chicagoan, whose name she did not give, told her the time is coming when she should seriously consider the question of marriage. She said she replied:

"I have, that is the reason I am single."

Gould Kin Robbed of $250,000 Gems

Paris, Dec. 17 (INS)—Rare jewelry and antiques, valued at $250,000, were stolen Saturday night from the Paris home of Mrs. Helen Margaret Kelly, former wife of Frank J. Gould, police revealed today.

Among the most important of the stolen articles Mrs. Kelly listed an ancient Hindu dagger hilt which was encrusted with emeralds, diamonds and rubies worth more than $10,000.

Aged Pastor Dies of Asphyxiation

New London, Conn., Dec. 17—The Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, about 65, for 25 years rector of St. James Episcopal Church here, was found dead in his home after he failed to appear at the church to conduct regular services.

Dr. Charles Kaufman, medical examiner, said the pastor had been asphyxiated accidentally. He was found in his living room, seated in an arm chair near a gas log. Nearby were some Christmas cards he had been addressing. Police said they believed the man had been dead since Friday.

BIBLE STUDENT IN DEATH TRY

weeks ago, sent a bullet into his abdomen, police said.

Before making the alleged suicide attempt, Little wrote to Miss Ethel Doran of Roxbury:

"I'm a coward, but rather than be a burn I took this way out. I'll always love you."

Little, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Little of Wollaston, was in a critical condition at Los Angeles Receiving Hospital today.

Word of the shooting was received today by his mother at the Hamilton street home, in a telegram from Los Angeles police.

Ten minutes later there arrived a letter from the youth, couched in cheerful vein, stating that he hoped everyone had had a good Thanksgiving, and wishing his father, mother, two sisters and two brothers "a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year," although he doubted if he could "do anything personally this year."

"I'm going to make good before I come home," the letter said.

Mrs. Little said that only last week, at his request, she had obtained letters of recommendation from the youth's pastor and several others and sent them to Los Angeles, where they were to be used in obtaining a chauffeur's job, for which he had advertised. A wealthy Pasadena woman had answered the advertisement, but she required good references.

Little's father works for an ice company and the youth was employed by the same company until last September.

Unable to find further work here, he left for Los Angeles early in November and had been seeking work since, picking up an occasional odd job, but finding nothing steady. He has been living at the Los Angeles Y. M. C. A.

According to his mother, the boy neither smokes nor drinks and has been particularly active in church work.

He is a graduate of the Boston Trade School, and in addition to being president of his church Bible class, captained the church baseball and basketball teams.

Green Says Education Only Curb Against Reds

By International News Service

Washington, Dec. 17.—Communism eventually will constitute a definite menace in the United States unless curbed by a campaign of education, William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, today told the House committee investigating un-American activities.

At present, Green said, Communism is not sufficiently powerful to cause any direct peril, but it is increasing.

"Communists are trying to undermine the labor unions," Green testified. "They are boring into the economic and political orders in this country."

"The Communist philosophy," he added, "thrives through lack of understanding. It is deceptive, incidious and misleading. It can be counteracted through education and the exposure of its doctrines."

He charged that the Third Internationale has continued to spread the Soviet doctrines throughout the nations of the world.

"There has been no cessation of Soviet propaganda activities here since Russia was recognized by the United States," Green concluded.

Green admitted there had been some attempts by Communists to turn the recent San Francisco strike to their advantage.

BOMB SLEUTHS TRAIL LETTER

An annonymous letter today sent four Boston detectives to Brockton and Pawtucket, R. I., and made those cities the center of the hunt for the bombers of the Majestic and Tremont Theaters, as well as show houses in Lynn and Pawtucket, last week.

The letter, whose contents were not made public at headquarters, purported to give new information about a professional bomber from New York, who is alleged to have been in Boston last Tuesday.

Detectives Georgs Augusta and Joseph Decker, considered experts in tracing unsigned letters, and Detectives Benjamin Goodman and William Goldston, of the Red squad, were dispatched on the mystery errand.

Mailmen Lose Tax Fight

Washington, Dec. 17 (INS)—The Supreme Court ruled today that rural letter carriers are subject to payment of state gasoline taxes on gasoline used in mail deliveries.

2 LAWYERS HELD IN KIDNAP PLOT

By Associated Press

Oklahoma City, Dec. 17—The arrest of James C. Mathers, Oklahoma City, and Ben Laska, Denver, attorneys for the defense in the $200,000 Charles F. Urschel kidnaping, was announced here today by the Department of Justice.

The attorneys were charged with complicity in the kidnaping for which Harvey Bailey, George (Machine Gun) Kelly and a dozen others were convicted and sentenced.

They are charged specifically with participation in the part of the $200,000 ransom loot that went to Albert Bates, one of the actual kidnapers who is serving a life term at Alcatraz Island prison.

Both attorneys participated in the Urschel trial.

At the same time its disclosed that the federal grand jury indicted Clara Fledman, wife of Bates; Edward Feldman, her son, and Alvin Scott, her brother-in-law. These indictments grew out of the recovery of $46,000 of the ransom money in Oregon.

FIFTH DEATH IN CCC CRASH; MOTOR VICTIMS MOUNT

Ralph Penta, 19, of 30 Maverick street, East Boston, died today in Fairview Hospital, Great Barrington, the fifth victim of a skidding CCC truck and the 15th in New England to die in weekend skidding accidents.

Similar fates still hovered over two of his fellow workers at the same hospital and four others were recovering from painful injuries as a result of the accident.

The CCC truck, from Camp 196 in New Marlboro, was one of three open-top trucks dispatched to St. Peter's Church in Great Barrington for a special service.

SWAYED, SKIDDED

The truck contained about 17 boys, including the driver. As the truck hit Three-Mile Hill, a steep section of the main highway to Springfield through Otis, it started to skid.

As it gained momentum on the steep down grade, the truck swayed more violently from side to side until it got completely out of control, finally throwing the occupants to the road side, and overturning.

The dead are:

Penta, Ralph, 19, of 30 Maverick street, East Boston.

The two still on the danger list were Frank Capezzuto, 19, of 22 Plum street, Worcester, and Benasiak, 19, of South Deerfield. Both suffered serious fractures and internal injuries.

Four others boys received severe injuries from which they are expected to recover. They are Edward Doyle, 22, of 109 Center street, Roxbury; John McHugh, 25, of 27 Empire street, Lynn; Walter Belmont, 19, of 15 Spalding street, Jamaica Plain, and Justin McCarthy, 18, of 26 Landers street, Lynn.

Carmelo Natoli, 202 River street, Waltham; Charles A. Siteman, 102 Magazine street, Cambridge; George Hosley, of 40 Chatham street, Everett, and William Piller, of 38 Dolphin avenue, Revere, driver of the machine, were all reported only slightly hurt.

Piller was technically charged with driving so as to endanger, but arraignment was postponed because of his injuries.

OTHER FATALITIES

In other accidents throughout New England the following were killed, or died in hospitals as the result of injuries:

PROHASKA, STEPHEN A., of 24 Chestnut road, West Roxbury, was killed when he was struck by an automobile in Washington street, West Roxbury, near the Dedham-Roxbury line. He died in a police ambulance.

SZERAK, JOSEPH, 45, of Fort avenue, Brookville, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile while he was crossing South Franklin street, Holbrook. He died in Goddard Hospital, Brockton.

BREMEN, GORDAN, 20, of 9 LeBaron avenue, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile as he walked around the rear end of a parked machine at Carter and Lane streets, Middleboro. He died in St. Luke's Hospital.

MORGAN, EVERETT, of Milford, N. H., was killed and Charles K. Grant, of Amherst, N. H., received injuries almost certainly fatal when the truck loaded with wood in which they were riding skidded and crashed at the edge of the road. Morgan died in Nashua Memorial Hospital, Wilton, N. H.

PRESS, JOSEPH, a meat dealer in St. Albans, Vt., was drowned when his truck in which he was driving across the ice on Lake Champlain near his home broke through. His body was recovered.

CHARLES, RALPH, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Charles, of 138 Llewellyn street, Lowell, died at St. John's Hospital of injuries he received when he was struck by an automobile on Bridge street there.

SWEENEY, HARRY A., 73, died in a Portland, Me., hospital of injuries he received when he was knocked down by an automobile. The driver of the machine said Sweeney stepped in front of the car.

JACOBS, MRS. ESTHER A., 72, of Danielson, Ct., died at Day Kimball Hospital, Putnam, Ct., of injuries she received in a head-on collision on the Danielson Pike. Her daughter, Mrs. Agnes V. Jacobs, and William Manning, 42, of Lymansville, operator of the other machine, are still in the hospital.

PUSCORIS, CHARLES, 46, of Southwick, died at Westfield Hospital of injuries he received when his car hit a fence. John Chekovski, a passenger, died at the hospital.

DONABEDIAN, ATON, 45, of Providence, R. I., was killed when he was struck by a street car there. The operator of the trolley was not held.

CONVICT LINKED TO MAYBERRY

torney of Middlesex County, who is conducting the case against Mayberry with the assistance of Charles C. Cabot, McCann testified that the lawyer represented the plaintiff in the Wilcox-Smythe case.

After identifying Donnelly in the courtroom, the witness said that this man and a George Mahoney had approached him and explained that a $11,000 verdict was wanted.

"If I thought it was what they wanted, I was to get $100," he said.

"Who said this?" he was asked, and answered:

"Mahoney."

DESCRIBES MEETING

McCann then testified that some time after the verdict for $8000 was returned, he again met the two men while he was having lunch with an officer of the "Telephone Union" City Hall Avenue.

Shortly afterward, McCann testified, he met Donnelly in Tremont street. They discussed the case of Downes vs. The Paine Furniture Company, in which Mayberry also represented the plaintiff.

LINKS FOREMAN

Donnelly asked him whether he knew anyone on the jury hearing that case, McCann testified, and as a result he took him to the home of Mr. Kohler, the jury foreman.

"Did Donnelly give you anything?" he was asked.

"Yes, $25," said the witness.

He explained that he was told he could not have the promised $100 because the Wilcox verdict had fallen short of the amount set.

Arrived at the Kohler home, Donnelly promised the foreman $50 for a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, according to McCann.

And he testified that amount was turned over to Kohler at the German club, in Jamaica Plain, after the $8000 finding was returned. At the same time, McCann testified, he got $10 from Donnelly.

He saw Donnelly once more, the witness testified, in January of 1933. That was in Portland, Me., where he was working. Donnelly had heard, he testified, that he had appeared before Carpenter and asked whether he would identify him.

"I told him that I certainly would," McCann testified.

The witness was then turned over for cross-examination.

NANCY HARKNESS ELIZABETH HORTON

They fly, "of course!" Why shouldn't they, they'll ask you blankly. It's an air-minded age. Man has grown wings and learned to use them since that day just 31 years ago, when Orville Wright, in his flimsy box-kite contraption, lifted himself off ground for a few hundred yards in the world's first flight at Kittyhawk, N. C. These flying girls who soared over Boston to celebrate the Wright anniversary are Nancy Harkness and Elizabeth Horton. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Watch your laurels, you boy Lindberghs! The girls are riding the clouds as enthusiastically as you are, and it takes courage and nerve and skill—not brute strength—to pilot a plane to new heights or new distances. Here with Mrs. "Teddy" Kenyon of Waban, who already holds many trophies won in competition, are Helen Porter of Brookline and Natalie Worth of Waban. All three were aloft over Boston today in observance of the 31st anniversary of Orville Wright's first flight at Kittyhawk, N. C. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Ship Disabled, 38 Are Aboard

Seattle, Dec. 17 (AP)—The British steamer Cape Ortegal, carrying a crew of 38, which sent out S O S calls last night 400 miles off the coast, reported it was limping back to Puget Sound today for repairs.

The Empress of Asia, which had raced for two hours to the vessel's side, radioed it had "stood by" while the freighter was "turning around" to head back toward the coast.

Malden's Oldest Woman, 101, Dies

Mrs. Bridget Urann, Malden's oldest woman, is dead in her home, Seaview avenue, at the age of 101 years and 10 months. She was a native of County Galway, Ireland, and came to America 87 years ago.

She is survived by four sons, 22 grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be tomorrow in St. Joseph's Church, and burial in Holy Cross Cemetery.

7 SURRENDER IN RUM TAX CASE

By Associated Press

Montreal, Dec. 17—Seven Montreal members of a group of 61 who are accused of defrauding the Dominion and Quebec governments of $5,000,000 by smuggling liquor into Canada surrendered at Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters today.

They were photographed and finger-printed.

They are the Bronfman brothers Sam, Allen, Abraham and Harry; S. S. Blair, David Costley and Barney Aaron.

Twelve accused from Nova Scotia arrived by train and were expected to be arraigned during the day also.

Others accused would, it was believed, be here in a day or so.

The Bronfmans, wealthy leaders in the distilling industry, had been given about a week to set their affairs in order before giving themselves up.

Kennamer Held in Murder Count

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 17 (AP)—Phil Kennamer, 19-year-old son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, was bound over today for district court trial in January on a charge of murder in the death of John F. Gorrell, 23-year-old dentistry student, here Thanksgiving night.

Boston's Missing Girls Linked to Fiendish Slayer of Budd Girl

Discovery that Boston women and girls had been corresponding with Albert H. Fish, self-confessed slayer of little Grace Budd in New York, led Boston police today to list girls missing here in the last six years.

Fear that some may have met a fate matching that of Grace Budd was openly expressed by some police officials, but the truth or error of this fear may never be learned.

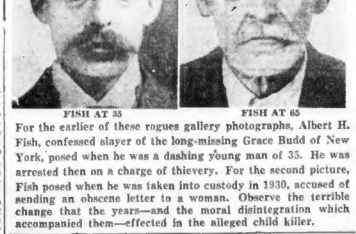
Fish, it has been learned through checking over thousands of letters in the 65-year-old house-painter's home, had correspondents in nearly every New England city, particularly Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Captain Stephen J. Flaherty, in charge of the detective bureau of the Boston police, wired a request to New York that names and addresses of all Boston girls found in the letters be forwarded here for checkup.

Police are anxious to discover if any of the scores of love-sick women and small boys and girls who wrote letters to Fish through matrimonial agency magazines, have dropped out of sight.

Captain Flaherty will assign to the task of tracing names through the mass of Fish's correspondence as many Boston detectives as may be required, he said today.

Boston's list of missing girls, like those in other cities tragically long and baffling, may yield information which will connect still other bloodchilling atrocities with the fiendish murder of 10-year-old Grace Budd.



FISH AT 35 FISH AT 65

For the earlier of these rogues gallery photographs, Albert H. Fish, confessed slayer of the long-missing Grace Budd of New York, posed when he was a dashing young man of 35. He was arrested then on a charge of thievery. For the second picture, Fish posed when he was taken into custody in 1930, accused of sending an obscene letter to a woman. Observe the terrible change that the years—and the moral disintegration which accompanied them—effected in the alleged child killer.

House Is Searched for Bones of New Victims

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 17—Search for other possible victims of the bloodmad slayer of Grace Budd turned today to an almost forgotten cottage hidden away in the glades behind the ramshackle "murder house," at Greenburg in Westchester County.

Detectives armed with shovels, picks and axes attacked the old structure in a methodical hunt for weather-beaten bones such as were recovered from the murder house itself.

For the Cottage-in-the-Glades was the home of Albert Howard Fish before he moved to Wisteria bungalow, to which he lured the Budd child and in a crime as fiendish as anything in history, strangled her body, chopped her body into pieces with meat cleaver, knife and saw.

The authorities widened their search in the face of new protestations by the confessed slayer that Grace Budd was his only victim. Discovery of five additional bones at the murder house itself indicated that others may have met the same fate meted out to the little girl.

Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings today announced he will seek a kidnaping indictment against Fish, taking Mrs. Delia Budd, mother of the slain girl, and Edward Budd, Grace's brother, before the grand jury.

Reversing a position taken Friday, Acting Attorney Albert B. Unger ruled the statute of limitations does not apply to a kidnaping charge in this case because Fish has lived out of the state and has used various aliases since the crime was committed.

BOSTON FLIERS PAY TRIBUTE TO WRIGHTS

Twenty-four planes from Boston airport roared above Greater Boston today in observation of the Wright brothers' first victory over the force of gravitation.

On December 17, 1903, Orville Wright, now the surviving brother of the air pioneers took off in their crude and flimsy wood, cloth and wire biplane at Kitty Hawk, N. C., at about 10:30 in the morning, while brother Wilbur watched from the sands.

Throughout the nation, the first flight was commemorated today at this same hour, Eastern Standard Time, by a flight of planes from 1400 airports in the land, with more elaborate ceremonies on Wright Field, Dayton, O., near where this first plane was constructed.

From Boston Airport, four army planes, five navy planes from the Squantum air base and 15 commercial planes, two of them carrying women fliers, took the air and circled counter-clockwise over Greater Boston, including in Cambridge, the Newtons, Brookline, Milton and Quincy, to cut in and cross Boston proper before landing after the half-hour flight.

The army and navy contribution flew in their regulation formations while the commercial planes, one piloted by Mrs. Theodore A. "Teddy" Kenyon, and another carrying Miss Margaret Kimball of Lexington, acted as escort in a go-as-you-please manner.

At the Dayton ceremonies, Eugene L. Vidal, director of air commerce and chairman of the National Aviation Day Committee, took part with other aviation leaders.

Roosevelt Sends Message to Wright

By Associated Press

Dayton, O., Dec. 17—Chiefs of the nation's three aviation branches joined with fliers and civil leaders today to pay tribute to the Wright brothers on the 31st anniversary of the first flight of a heavier-than-air machine.

Ernest L. Vidal, chief of the Bureau of Air Commerce, presented to the surviving Wright brother a personal message from President Roosevelt. It read:

"Dear Doctor Wright:

"We celebrate today in grateful appreciation of what you did at Kitty Hawk, N. C., 31 years ago, December 17, 1903.

"In showing us the way that successfully to take flight in a power-driven, heavier-than-air craft, you and your illustrious brother, the late Wilbur Wright, gave the world a new science—one possessing such tremendous possibilities that our experts have not been able, as yet, to tell their limitations or the full scope of their usefulness. Great strides, however, have been made in developing this science of aviation, and each step in its development has produced increasing value.

"The people of this country and the officials of their government in Washington join today in honoring you and in acknowledging their gratitude to you and to the memory of your brother Wilbur.

"I am privileged to send you this message and to trust its delivery to the active heads of the governmental agencies most directly identified with aviation. They will fly from Washington to your home in Dayton to carry out this mission.

"This anniversary is being observed by thousands throughout the nation.

"I gladly extend to you cordial wishes for many years of health and happiness.

Very sincerely yours,

Franklin D. Roosevelt."

STUDENTS SHOP, THEN PAY FINES IN CAMBRIDGE

Four Harvard students and a former student who is a member of a wealthy Texas family paid fines of $25 in East Cambridge court today for a hilarious shopping trip in Central square, Cambridge, Saturday.

Another student, Elliot Dalton, 21, of Adams street, Milton, was found guilty of drunkenness and the case was placed on file.

The Texas youth, Alexander B. McFadden, 21, was fined on charges of disturbing the peace, together with Philip Weld, Jr., 19; Joseph Davis, Jr., 22, of New York; Stanley G. Mortimer, Jr., 21, of Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, and Winston Frost, 20, or Middleburg, Va. Charges of drunkenness against each were filed.

B. Loring Young, former speaker of the House, entered pleas of guilty for the entire group. He told the court it was the practice of a secret Harvard club to conduct a Christmas shopping tour annually. He added:

"The boys have told me this thing will stop."

Judge Edward A. Counihan, Jr., imposed the fines without comment.

$427,000 THEFT SOLUTION SEEN

By Associated Press

Chicago, Dec. 17—Solution of the $427,000 armored truck robbery in Brooklyn last August was predicted today by Chief Postal Inspector Walter Johnson as a result of the arrest of Joseph Burns, Dillinger gangster.

Burns, 58, one of ten convicts who fought their way out of the Michigan City, Ind., penitentiary with guns smuggled them by John Dillinger, probably will be turned over to Indiana officers soon.

Officers resumed questioning Burns after an all night grilling for information about John Hamilton and Joseph Fox, the others of the 10 still at large.

Burns was captured in a flat by 30 federal officers and Chicago policemen, was held incommunicado.

Funeral Leads to Court Suit

Providence, Dec. 17—Charging he was made temporarily insane through a mixup over his wife's funeral in 1931, John E. Costello of Delhi street, today filed suit for $25,000 against the Mannix Funeral Home of Pawtucket.

Costello was released only 10 days ago from a state institution for the insane, to which he had been taken during the time his wife was buried three years ago.

Through Attorney Gertrude Friedman of Pawtucket, he charged that his wife's body was held in a morgue until insurance money arrived with which to pay the bill.

The cortege, according to the suit, was thrown into confusion when the hearse suddenly disappeared on the way to the cemetery on the funeral day.

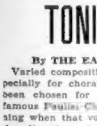
PAULIST CHORUS BROADCAST TONIGHT

By THE EARCUPPER

Varied compositions, designed especially for choral rendition, have been chosen for radioing by the famous Paulist Choristers this evening when that vocal group, under the direction of Father Finn, is heard from coast to coast (WBZ) at 10:30 p. m.

Henry Marcosson and Jean Kraling will be the soloists. Such selections as "The Hope Carol," by Smith; Gevaert's "May Song" and "Spirit Flower," by Campbell Tipton, are scheduled in the order named, with the traditional "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" and Gounod's "Sanctus" rounding out the half hour presentation. An extensive NBC network of stations has been made ready for the special setting.



Father Finn

Gertrude Nielsen has not been doing much singing of songs from the new "Calling All Stars" footlight show lately, in fact very little. This evening, however (WNAC), while her turn with he Lud Gluskin Orchestra is taking place from 9:30 until 10 o'clock, he popular blues singing beauty has in mind to make something splendid out of the character tune "Just Mention Joe," which is very much a part of the stage revue.

Referring to opera and rather seriously, an overture of favorite arias from Leoncavallo's renowned "Pagliacci" on the list for featuring (WEEI) by Harry Horlick and his well known band of broadcasting "Gypsies" when 9 o'clock rolls around. Frank Parker, the busiest, and some say the best tenor in the air castles, figures to contribute "I'll Follow My Secret Heart," and "Out in The Cold Again" for his solos.

STARTING SERIES

Nelson Eddy, also among the top notch concert tenors and so close to the top of the list that one doesn't really venture to name a singer rating above him, starts being part of the new winter series (WEEI) getting under way tonight, at 8:30, where William Daly does the music directing.

Opposition "mike" fare, meaning at 8:30 and over on the WNAC frequency, includes the classic concert soprano personality, Muzia Frances Alda. Songs from many countries will comprise her effort.

DEEP DARK DOINGS

More mystery drama awaits loudspeaker entertainment who may not find the two major networks affording enough such excitement tonight. Additional suspense and confused circumstances surrounding How six men in a boat and one murdered gives the detective angle a chance to spread for itself. All of which a to be had but for the dialing up there to where WMEX holds forth, the time being 9 to 9:30 p. m.

Carson Robison, head man of the "Bar X Days and Nights" bunch of microphone buckaroons, has a lively tale to tell (WNAC) this evening on the stroke of 8 o'clock. It's about Wyatt Earp and his brothers, fearless big fellows of the Western plains, who acted alternately as peace officers and two-gun killers.

FATE OF DOROTHY ARNOLD?

IN THE EARLY WINTER DUSK SHE STARTED ACROSS CENTRAL PARK FOR HOME . . . THE DUSK SWALLOWED HER. SHE WAS NEVER SEEN AGAIN

DOROTHY ARNOLD

This is the third in a daily series of articles based on the mystery of missing persons.

By WIN BROOKS

Missing . . . missing . . . missing . . .

Pompadour? Flat muff?

Well, it was 24 years ago that description was broadcast to all sections of the civilized world.

And Dorothy H. C. Arnold still is missing.

She was a graduate of Bryn Mawr, daughter of Francis R. Arnold, New York millionaire importer, niece of the late Justice Peckham of United States Supreme Court.

GONE INTO DUSK

An unusually pretty girl, well bred in the aristocracy of wealth, cultured, ideally happy in her home, devoted to her parents, contented (or so they said).

On December 11, 1910, she was a charming hostess at a luncheon at Sherry's for several girl friends.

On December 12, at 11:30 a. m., she left her home at 108 East 79th street, New York city, on a Christmas shopping expedition along Fifth avenue, with less than $30.

She bought candy at one store, a novel at another, and in the early winter dusk started across Central Park for home.

SECRET BUT VAIN HUNT

Her disappearance was kept secret by her parents and detectives for six weeks, during which thousands of dollars were spent on private search.

The family suspected an elopement with George C. Griscom, Jr., son of a Pittsburgh lawyer. They had not approved of him.

He was located in Florence, Italy. He cabled that he knew nothing of Dorothy's whereabouts. Mrs. Arnold wasn't satisfied. She sailed for Florence with her son, J. W. Arnold. Griscom convinced them.

Private detectives followed hundreds of blind leads, spending a fortune. Letters exchanged by Dorothy and Griscom were studied for clues. They contained none. Morgues and hospitals were searched.

SHIPS SEARCHED AT SEA

On January 25, 1911, the news of Dorothy's disappearance was made public as a last resort. Immediately, word was flashed from Italy that Griscom had been seen in the company of a veiled woman. She wasn't Dorothy, she was Dorothy's mother, seeking her daughter.

Arnold offered to pay any sum within reason for his daughter's safe return, at the same time expressing a new conviction that she had been slain in Central Park. The lake in the park and two reservoirs were dragged.

A. Samuelson, pawnbroker, reported that Dorothy called at his shop and bought a suit of men's clothes, at the same time inquiring about the sailing of vessels for Europe. The Griscom angle again! Every wireless-equipped vessel at sea, bound for Europe, was searched in vain.

REPORTED HERE, THERE

Dorothy was reported in Buffalo, insane.

Dorothy was reported in Chicago and San Francisco, in Montreal and Mexico City, in London and in Paris.

The vaults and caverns under the million-dollar stairway connecting the Mall with the Plaza in Central Park, were searched for her body.

A man claimed to have overheard someone admitting Dorothy was being held a prisoner. The family paid him money for information but he had none worth while.

Later it was reported that Dorothy's father was convinced she killed herself—that she had threatened suicide because of her family's objection to Griscom's courtship.

The search for Dorothy Arnold was probably the most expensive ever conducted. It turned up no worthwhile clue.

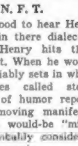
This Ear—
—That Air

By N. F. T.

Wasn't it good to hear Henry Burbig back in there dialecting yesterday? Henry hits these ears just right. When he works, reaction invariably sets in where the sometimes called stone-walled sense of humor reposes within this moving manifestation of what would-be "mike" comedians probably consider a non-responsive cynic.

More and more of the big time broadcasting stars are sending word abroad to those who forward them gifts, that giving tokens of esteem to the needy would be more in order. Handkerchiefs, mufflers, candy and many other articles still come to outstanding net celebrities. They naturally appreciate the gestures, but acknowledge the remembrances these days with suggestions that there are countless individuals to whom the presents would be more useful. Incidentally, unselfish spirit thus shown adds to the popularity of any air favorite, do you think?



"N. F. T."

Quite a few New York radio editors have slipped up on a bit of unusual sound sanctum news. They were incredulous it seems, refusing to believe that on the day John Daly Murphy died not long ago, the actor was actually to be entered in rehearsal with Mary Pickford, cast to play a part in a dramatic setting. It was written to end with the death of the character.

OUT OF THE ETHER

Oftener than not, when artists make talk about how their fee for one broadcast runs into four figures, they mean $32.50 . . . When Joe, Guy, Jacques and Sammy sat together that evening recently in the Statler Salle Moderne, it was the witty wag Di Pesa who claimed "Reichman, Renard, Lombardo and Liner" would make a swell law firm name if ever the four fellows stepped out of the orchestra leading fraternity. Moreover, Maestro Joe Reichman is already an attorney, so there . . . Hearing how "Andy" punched "The Kingfish" because the latter made a pass at his pal "Amos" the other night, brought to mind the real estate of Charlie (Andrew) Correll knocking a clowner down in Chicago a few years back, for creating a small disturbance (Amos) Gosden. Perhaps I'm giving you a wee bit of an inkling as to how the blackface boys work original ideas into their nightly airing . . . with all due respect to the Thursday night "Showboat" master-of-ceremonying, listeners aplenty over the land do miss Charles (Correll-Henry) Winninger a lot . . . Yes siree and hey-hey, mousedom is all agog. Multitudes of little grey Mickeys and Minnies are sitting up, tails turned up and ears erect. Spreading from hole to hole is the latest squeaking whisper to the effect that the fancy cartoon Mouse who made good in such a big way, will be a "Hall of Fame" program guest artist next Sunday evening . . . Mort Downey soloing, Ray Sinatra musical directing and the power of Guy Bates Post voice personality sent that new Sunday afternoon half-hour off in fine fashion. It will win a way quickly if that standard is maintained.

CURRENT RADIO QUESTIONS AND THE ANSWERS

Tell me please, is John White, the "lonesome cowboy" singer, a real puncher out of the West? Myself and a friend have a bet on the answer. L. H. J. of Lynn.

You both win, he has been, but not always. Before broadcasting, he was a reporter on a newspaper in Washington, D. C.

Does Frank Parker really talk during the Jack Benny programs, or is it the voice of someone else speaking, with Parker the tenor soloist? R. M. of Medford.

Yes, indeed, Parker puts in those comedy lines and he's had much more fan mail as a result than he received while just soloing on the air.

Why does that bing-bong-bong business come through the air every half hour? Does it actually mean anything? P. O. B. of West Roxbury.

It's the network signal for affiliated stations to cut in and identify their call letters and location, which is a Federal Communications Commission ruling. Only the NBC chain uses the chime however, the CBS merely uses their own signature, maybe you've noticed.

Do they really shoot pistols in studios and does the actress in a sketch ever really scream, or are others employed to do this? K. D. of Dorchester.

Sometimes a revolver is used, but rarely. A stick slapped sharply on a leather chair seat produces the most authentic "shot" effect. Actresses who can scream in realistic fashion generally get the job when a drama requires screaming.

My neighbor, a native of Maine, insists that Rudy Vallee is an only child and that his real name is Rollo. Can you inform me if this is correct? L. C. of Belmont.

Sorry, but the good neighbor is slightly wrong. Rudy has a younger brother Bill and the fair haired favorite himself was christened Hubert Pryor Vallee.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT WILL MAKE FILM -:- CLAUDE RAINS ON KEITH'S SCREEN

Lights and Shadows

By George Holland

Shaw's "St. Joan" is listed in Philip Moeller's catalogue as the greatest play of the parade of plays that has passed him in review. The famous director, who is here as the guiding hand of "Rain from Heaven" at the Plymouth Theater, has other favorites among the plays that have come and gone since he first directed for the Washington Square Players, from which the Theatre Guild sprang.

Philip Moeller

Mr. Moeller found "Processional," by the same John Howard Lawson who wrote "Success Story," the most fascinating play. (Perhaps we have been under-estimating Mr. Lawson.) He found "Volpone," by Ben Johnson, the most colorful; "Elizabeth the Queen," the most simulating; "The Moon in the Yellow River," the most charming; "They Shall Not Die," last year's dramatized protest against the Scottsboro case by John Wexley, the most exciting. But "St. John" holds place in the director's affections as the greatest.

All of G. Bernard Shaw's plays which the Theater Guild has produced have been directed by Philip Moeller. Three of these were world premieres, "St. Joan," "The Apple Cart" and "Too True to Be Good." The most difficult problems in staging presented by Mr. Shaw's indefatigable pen was "Back to Methuselah," one of the early Guild bits.

Those who have believed "John Ferguson" to be the first play produced by the Theater Guild, as this playwright did, will be corrected by Mr. Moeller. "Bonds of Interest," by Jacinto Benevente was the Guild's first play, and Mr. Moeller staged it. Since that time he has directed 53 other plays for that organization, and has never been associated in a directorial capacity with another producer. Of his 54 plays, Mr. Moeller has a record of 34 definite hits, and 15 of them have been what are known in theatrical circles as "smashes."

He directed all but one of the O'Neill plays which the Guild has produced, including O'Neill's two most successful plays, "Mourning Becomes Electra" and "Strange Interlude." Mr. Moeller, if it is necessary to say, has directed many of the finer actors of the theater. Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne, Helen Hayes, George M. Cohan, Pauline Lord, Ulrich Haupt, Nova and Ina Claire (this order not the order of importance) have been some of them.

* * *

Mr. Moeller relies upon the intelligence of actors in rehearsing. At the start of rehearsals he says he gives his players his idea of the characters they are to play and the manner in which these characters should react to the situations which they face in the play. He then lets them work things out for themselves. I was interested in reading a story by Frank Capra, perhaps the best of the motion picture directors, yesterday, in which Mr. Capra declares he follows this self-same fashion of procedure. Another believer in directorial "rhythm" actor, by the way, is Arthur Hopkins, who will appear as co-producer and director of Leslie Howard's new play "The Petrified Forest," which comes to the Shubert Theater Christmas Eve.

At Howard

Opening today, at the Old Howard, are two of burlesques' most popular comedians, Foster and Kramer, headlining "Dashing Debs," a new production of the Independent Burlesque Associations.

Billie Diamond

A cast of 50 is in the company, with Billy Diamond, Virginia Jones and Eva Osborne topping the ranks of beauties. Sammy Spears is another of the show's funmakers.

On the screen are "Lady Killer," with James Cagney and Mae Clark in starring roles, and "Name the Woman," featuring Arline Judge and Richard Cromwell. Short screen subjects complete the program.

Seats are now on sale for both the Christmas and New Year's Eve midnight shows.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Dec. 17—The very moment that Lawrence Tibbett finishes his engagement at the Metropolitan Opera House, he'll take a fast train for Hollywood. Lawrence has a movie job again. Darryl Zanuck has signed him on a long term contract and he's due here June 1 to be starred in "Sing, Governor, Sing!" You'd be amazed how many fans have been asking why not Tibbett on the screen again?

Darryl is frank in saying the reason that he signed Tibbett was because of the Grace Moore success in "One Night of Love." Certainly the Grace Moore influence is far - reaching in Hollywood. Soon we'll have every one but Garbo, Chevalier, Cansza, himself out here and maybe we'll have him too, as this is his last year at the Met.

Upton Sinclair, who for Louella O. Parsons months was the boogey-man of the movies when he was running for governor, wants to become one of us. Sinclair has movie ambitions and he's engaged Zeppo Marx, of the Marx brothers, to represent him in all negotiations. Sinclair will write, if he gets the chance, and I'm told that he had dinner with Samuel Goldwyn and he has an appointment with Louis B. Mayer. So all is going to be too beautiful. Why not? After all, Sinclair is an established writer, and he should be a much better scenarist than politician.

Saw Lupe Velez all done up in a white caracul coat with a cossack hat and muff to match. Lupe was filled with London and she cannot make up her mind whether to return there and appear in a play for Waller or accept Basil Dean's offer to star in "Ballerina," a motion picture. "If something doesn't happen queek," says Lupe, "Johnny and I will go back to England." Johnny might as well go back, Lupe, Samson, he's had a haircut and I'm afraid he's lost the Tarzan look.

* * *

Joseph Schildkraut, without valet, extra trunks or temperament arrived to play a role in "The Crusades" for Cecil B. De Mille. Floyd Bacon is studing all the history of Mexico from cover to cover on account of he will direct Dolores Del Rio and Pat O'Brien in "In Calienta." Robert Montgomery and Chester Morris fooled so much with the train Chester bought for his small boy as a Christmas gift, they broke the thing and had to take it back to the shop for repairs. Evelyn Laye and Frank Lawton hurrying to finish their work at Metro-Goldwin-Mayer so they can spend Christmas in New York.

Snapshots of Hollywood

IRVING BERLIN'S songs, believe it or not, interfering with the slumber of the Beverly Wilshire's patrons: so he has moved to the penthouse to compose ditties on the piano to his heart's content; they tell me VIRGINIA BRUCE, in a recent test, made a great hit as a singer and dancer; JOSEPH SCHENCK giving DARRYL ZANUCK a stag in honor of the arrival of the new Zanuck heir; ARTHUR RICHMAN hurrying to New York to meet GRETA NISSEN; they say he's eur-asy over her and will be a happy man if she says "Yes"; JOAN CRAWFORD making her exit from the Ambassador through the kitchen to escape the pillaging high school students who made a rush at her for autographs; JIMMY MANOR, popular maitre d'hotel, to the rescue; Rudolph Sieber, MARLENE DIETRICH'S husband, no longer assistant on their pictures; no one seems to know why; DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS will buy a boat in Florida and will use it to cruise around the world; he'll produce pictures, but he's told friends he'll never act in them again. That's all today, see you tomorrow!

Playbill

Opening Tonight

Sevitzky's Young Orchestra in 'Cavalleria Rusticana' Triumph

Singing and acting that would have brought credit to many more experienced and professional companies, characterized the performance of Cavalleria Rusticana presented by the Fabien Sevitzky ensemble in Jordan Hall on Saturday evening, with Mr. Sevitzky conducting his Young Musicians's Orchestra in the pit, and directing his vocal Ensemble on the stage.

Frances Madden, as the Santuzza, accomplished her difficult falls, the despair of many more experienced divas, as gracefully as she handled an excellent voice; Esther Solar in the brief part of Lola showed herself a capable young actress; Grace Donahue's Mamma Lucia was well acted and sung in a singularly rich contralto; and while Vincent Spolzino's Turiddu was not quite the fop the libretto calls for, it was a spirited and sincere performance. John Percival, known to local radio listeners, brought his good voice to the part of Alfio.

The opera was presented in English, and soloists, ensemble and orchestra show a great deal of promise and the results of Mr. Sevitzky's untiring work and interest. The audience was large and enthusiastic.

Edward Matthews, Negro baritone who created the role of St. Ignatius in Gertrude Stein's opera, "Four Saints in Three Acts," will present a program of songs in Jordan Hall this evening. Mr. Matthews will sing "St. Ignatius' Vision," with the composer, Vergil Thomson at the piano. The remainder of the program will consist of Negro spirituals, and songs from Schubert, Brahms, Hahn, Smith, Bridge and Osborne.

Joan Bennett Also Featured in 'The Man Who Reclaimed His Head' Film

By JOYCE DANA

With propaganda for peace strongly outweighing romance, "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," adapted for the films from a play by Jean Bart, took over the screen at the Keith Memorial Saturday.

That excellent actor, Claude Rains, more familiar to those who have followed the legitimate drama rather than the movies, is the misunderstood and, since he is driven to murder by a lurid and grotesque degradation merited, misled hero. Joan Bennett, sweet and simple, is a heroine who's a bit over her depth as the pleasure-loving but loyal young wife, a combination that's hard to reconcile from the conventional point of view of the Hollywood screen.

"The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" can scarcely be placed under the head of entertainment, but one may praise it for the strong work of Claude Rains, who as the intense and altruistic young Paris newspaper man, sacrifices his ideals and his integrity to satisfy the mercenary ambitions of his young and pretty wife. Fighting a lone battle in the press as another man's brains for weekly pay, exposing the greedy munitions makers, Rains as Paul Verin comes at last to the place in life where his illusions crumble and where his devotion to his code of honor and to his lovely wife drives him to the breaking point and murder.

Lionel Atwill is the polished publisher and munitions king Jean Verin's brains, and rises to political power as the popular idol whom his henchmen has created. Theirs is a powerful plea in 100 point headlines for world peace, until on the eve of the World War, Atwill, as Henri Dumont, sells himself, body and soul to the munitions makers and goes patriotic with a vengeance. And since his inferiority to and fear of the man who has made him are overpowering, his only revenge is to steal away that man's morals by stealing his wife.

Verin, overhearing scandalous inferences in a railway station near the front, returns to Paris, finds his wife against her wishes, in the interests of virtue) in Dumont's arms, and with incoherence and paranoia, believes his head from his body. Fortunately we are spared the revolting sight of M. Dumont's head which reposes in the murderer's traveling bag while he tells the story. And it's perhaps just as well that we are not regaled with the court-room scene, in which we are led to believe that a singularly compassionate jury will free the prisoner.

The unfortunate Mr. Rains, who did such a grand piece of work in "Crime Without Passion," is called upon to shed tears and expound noble theories throughout the film. Joan Bennett tries her best to be effective, with scant success, as the paradoxical wife; Baby Jane adds her saccharine charms and unbelievable baby precocity for those who like that sort of thing (strangely enough remaining static in her too adorable babyhood through the passage of years). Only Lionel Atwill brings conviction to his role as the urbane and unprincipled newspaper publisher.

The film version of "The Man who Reclaimed His Head" falls far short of its message, and manages to be little more than lugubrious, with only a few chuckles by Henry Armetta to lighten things up once or twice. Mr. Rains deserves far better things.

Miss Crosman in New Role

Henrietta Crosman, famous on the American stage long before the movies were born, comes to the screen in another of her recent Hollywood excursions in "Among the Missing," a thrilling drama of crime which had its first showings at the Modern on Saturday. Miss Crosman is the elderly and astute Aunt Martha, who falls into the company of some altogether preposessessing gentlemen burglars, played by Arthur Hohl and Richard Cromwell. Cromwell is, of course, the unsuspecting accomplice of the villainous ringleader; and Aunt Martha takes a hand and a voice in luring him from the primrose path to the straight and narrow and into an acceptable romance with Billie Seward, who, after only a few months in the studios, displays charms and talents that promise well for the future.

There's plenty of comedy woven into the exciting plot, with Aunt Martha the somewhat frantic victim of incriminating circumstances.

On the same program is "College Rhythm," which brings Joe Penner to the screen, with Goo-Goo, the duck, safely in tow, and is further enhanced by the presence of Lanny Ross, Jack Oakie, Lyda Roberti, Helen Mack and Mary Brian.

Featured

State Program

The new program at Loew's State on Thursday is scheduled for four days only, featuring "A Wicked Woman," starring Mady Christians, and "Babes in Toyland," the Victor Herbert classic, with Laurel and Hardy in the leading roles. The program closes on Sunday evening, December 23, to be followed with a Christmas Eve opening on Monday of Wallace Beery in "The Mighty Barnum," a new screen story of America's greatest showman by Gene Fowler and Bess Meredith.

At Fine Arts

Another in the series of German lessons will be given tomorrow night at 9 o'clock at the Fine Arts theater, preceding the last evening showing of "Season in Cairo." The class will be conducted from the stage by a member of the faculty of the Berlitz School of Languages. This feature has proved a popular innovation at the Back Bay house of foreign films.

'beacon hill'

By Betty Alden

WITH GAYLY LIGHTED Christmas trees twinkling in the clear still nights in all the surrounding communities and clusters of bright holly sending forth a stream of friendly welcome from quaint doorways on Beacon Hill, most prudent citizens have found a solution to the perplexing problems of gifts and entertaining and are ready with eager hearts to spend this gloriously hectic week before the holiday in wrapping and sealing with bits of tinsel; spreading cheer throughout the hospitals to the hundreds of shutins who depend for their Christmas cheer on the magnanimous spirit of Boston's socialites; tying up red apples and filling stockings for children's homes and rehearsing carols for the evening when tall white tapers glow in every window on Beacon Hill...

HOPE BLANCHARD

Members of the Junior League Glee Club will begin their carolling early with three concerts on Thursday afternoon...starting at the Boston Dispensary they will stroll through the wards singing their program of early French and German carols, the familiar English carols with descants, and all sung a capella...From there they will visit the Floating Hospital and the Massachusetts General...

Debs Among Carollers

VIVACIOUS HOPE BLANCHARD, the debutante niece of the New York Stock Exchange's Richard Whitney, is one of the carollers, as is Daphne Brooks, the Gorham Brooks' debutante; Betty Brooks, who hails from Concord; Helen Cunningham, Edith Cummin, another new member this year; Mrs. William Davies, Mrs. F. William Andres, the secretary of the Glee Club; Sue Dalton, Molly Derby, Mary Bryant, Edith Bradley, Barbara Holdsworth and Kay Forbes...

All these attractive songsters wending their way through the corridors will contribute a large share of the cheer and excitement of the season to the hearts of the shut-ins in these institutions and their voices will echo through the days to come.

Others in the singing group are Phebe Keyes, Louise Harding, Jean Tuckerman, Alice Spaulding, Mrs. William T. King, Mrs. Oliver Leland, Mrs. Leonard Wheeler, Jr., Mrs. J. T. Walker, Jr., Mary Storrow, Nora Peabody, Lydia Lyman and Gertrude Lawrence Peabody...

The Channing Wells, who left yesterday to spend the rest of the winter with their son Cady in Tucson, Arizona, will undoubtedly find quite a difference in the Christmas celebration out there in the dry hot climate of the West...They have been accustomed to the frosty weather, tingling bells and evergreens which we associate with the holiday season, at the large family parties they have entertained at their country home in Southbridge and also at their Brimmer street town house...Cady, who has had exhibitions of his paintings in several of our exclusive art centers, is continuing his artistic career and has also opened a rest home for fashionables seeking relaxation from the hustle of everyday life...

Engagement Announced at Tea

THE TEA ON SATURDAY which was given by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cunningham at their Milton home in honor of the engagement of their daughter, Polly, to Lincoln Davis, Jr., brother of last week's bride, Katherine Davis Hammond, was a very fashionable party . . . Among the many guests who drove out to extend their best wishes were Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield, Mrs. William Davis, Jr., and the Junior Gordon Abbotts . . . Polly is a popular Vincent Club and Junior League member and her fiance is a prominent sportsman and member of the Eastern Yacht Club where he is a familiar figure at all the important sailing events . . .

Echoes from the first of the Junior Supper Dances reveal the disheartening news for some young hopefuls that the list is even more hand picked than ever this year and that only the ballroom pets of last winter's debs received the precious pale blue admittance cards . . . To ARRIVE is to be one of the unmarrieds invited to these swanky dances . . .

Invitations have just been issued to a most select list of this year's debs and the young eligibles who have been beauing them this winter, to a house dance on January 7 at the beautiful Chestnut street home of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Foote, in honor of their daughter, Miss Doris, one of the season's outstanding debs . . . a Vincent Club and provisional Junior League member, who was launched into society at a midsummer tea party at the family estate in Dublin . . .

Exhibition Attracts Notables

THE CHRISTMAS EXHIBITION of the works of Nura which opened in the Junior League gallery last week, is one of the most ambitious and comprehensive displays thus far hung in the League . . . It includes, not only oils and water colors by this well known New York artist, but also sculpture, hand colored lithographs and her two books, "Stories By . . ." and "The Buttermilk Tree," all dealing with the fascinating and perplexing subject of childhood . . .

Doris Foote

Among the art lovers who have roved around the Gallery enthusiastically appreciating the talent of this exhibitor are Mrs. Carl Van Ness, Mrs. C. Stephen Heard, Mrs. Joseph C. Kennard, Mrs. C. Adrian Ruble, and Mrs. William Wood McCarthy with her house guest, Mrs. T. M. Girdler of Cleveland . . .

In appreciation of the untiring efforts of Fabien Sevitzky, who is an important figure in the musical life of Boston, Mrs. Arthur L. Hobson made a round trip from her home in Little Boars Head on Saturday evening to hear Cavalleria Rusticana at Jordan Hall, performed with a remarkable freshness and harmony of ensemble by Mr. Sevitzky's chorus and orchestra . . . She was accompanied by her two sons with their wives . . . Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hobson, Jr., of Beverly, and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Hobson . . . An amethyst crepe gown under a fox trimmed ermine wrap was worn by Mrs. Hobson and the Junior Mrs. Arthur wore a black taffeta gown flowered in large roses . . . Another notable person in the audience was Edith Noyes Green, a prominent musician,

Hasty Pudding Members to Wed

THE WEEK-END marked the announcement of two engagements of interest to society and clubmen. Two more members of Harvard's Hasty Pudding Club have forsaken the ranks of bachelordom and entered the pre-benedict era.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lucius Castle of Quincy, Ill., announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eleanor Jaffray Castle, to Ernest S. Young of Marlborough street, son of Mrs. Ernest B. Young and the late Dr. Young.

Miss Castle, who is a granddaughter of Mrs. T. Dennie Thompson of Andover, was graduated from St. Catherine's school in Richmond, Va. Mr. Young was graduated from Harvard College in 1923 and is a member of the Hasty Pudding and Fox Clubs.

Mr. and Mrs. David Sutton of Wahan announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Carter Sutton, to Alfred Hart Stafford, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stafford of Newtonville, at a tea at their home yesterday afternoon.

Miss Sutton was graduated from Smith College in 1928 and Mr. Stafford was a member of the class o. 1926 at Harvard, and a member of the Pi Eta and Hasty Pudding Clubs.

Debutantes Assist at Auction of Strange Pets for Charity

IT IS COMMONLY conceded that this world's goods are pretty much within arm's reach for a debutante, but never has a group of debutantes held in their arms such a curious assortment of creatures as will be held by the girls who will appear upon the stage of the Colonial Theater after the final curtain of Walter Hampden's performance on Friday evening, December 21, each holding such strange, rare pet to be offered for sale at auction. The occasion will be an auction sale of curious things which has been arranged by Mrs. William P. Homans for the benefit of the Emergency Campaign of 1935.

Among the debutantes who have offered their services are Miss Mary Morison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Morison; Miss Mary Fuller, daughter of ex-Governor and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller; Miss Eleanor Claflin of Brookline; Miss Olivia Stone of Beacon street; Miss Elizabeth Everts of Chestnut Hill, and Miss Margaret Burnett, daughter of Mrs. George H. Burnett, who is spending the winter at the Lincolnshire.

Great credit is due Mrs. Homans and her imaginative committee who have rounded up a collection of most bizarre and interesting objects. The committee includes Mrs. Ralph Lowell of Westwood; Mrs. Henry R. Shepley of Brookline, Mrs. George S. Talbot of Hingham, Mrs. Benjamin T. Stephenson of Newton, Mrs. Harold F. McNeil of Brookline and Mrs. John T. Bottomley of Beacon street.

"Chin-Chin" a six months old Siamese kitten, will be one of the many interesting things offered for sale. "Chin-Chin" has been donated by Mrs. Guy Currier of Mount Vernon street, who received her (or him as the case may be) from Mr. Julius Fleishman of Cincinnati, who is famous for his collection of Siamese cats. An Italian lark and a Shetland pony are also among the many things offered for the sale, which the committee predicts will be the most heterogeneous collection ever gathered together on a stage.

Mrs. Margaret Curtis, newly appointed chairman of the woman's division of the emergency campaign of 1935, which opens officially on January 14, will be present to receive the proceeds from the auction.

Don Cossacks Score in New Program

By ANN AMES

Before the largest audience in several seasons, and with more enthusiasm than the staid confines of Symphony Hall have heard in many months, the Don Cossacks, with Serge Jaroff again directing, presented a program of songs yesterday afternoon.

To the glamour and color of this great choral group, which had its origin in a Bulgarian prison camp, there is added a perfect mastery of ensemble singing that never once falters. Whether in the rugged and rousing folk songs of their native land, or in the simplicity and purity of Moussorgsky's lovely "Hovanschina," these 36 voices are perfectly controlled media of musical expression. The favorites yesterday were the virile, swashbuckling, and sometimes humorous choruses in the Cossack Songs, arranged by Mr. Jaroff, and undoubtedly sung many times around an army campfire.

Yet more satisfying as to musical content were Wedel's "Open to Me the Doors of Repentance, Giver of Life," Tchaikovsky's "Our Holy Lord," and Mr. Jaroff's arrangement from "The Invisible Town of Kitezh and the Maid Fevronia," by Rimsky-Korsakoff. Never have the Don Cassacks been heard to better advantage than in "The Moon Is Shining," arranged by G. Fistulari, in which the delicacy of the tenor voices was almost ethereal, and the deep basses unbelievably rich and musical.

There has never been group singing like this within memory. Their military precision on the concert stage, the costumes, the occasional whistling and the addition of the high-booted and high-stepping dancers who come on at the close of the program—these are tricks that add spice and flavor for popular taste. But back of and beyond all that is the amazing musicianship of these men, many of them from factories and mines, singing with deep poetic feeling.

Catholic Alumnae to Hold Christmas Benefit

New Home of Sisters in Roxbury Will Be Scene

THE ANNUAL CHRISTMAS tree, sponsored by the Massachusetts Chapter, Federation of Catholic Alumnae, for the colored children of the Blessed Sacrament Settlement House, South End, will be celebrated on December 22, at 2.30 o'clock, in the spacious new home of the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament, in Roxbury, which was recently dedicated and has called forth so much admiration from the general public.

Miss Sue Sheridan, governor of the chapter, will complete plans with the assistance of her committee at a meeting on Tuesday evening at Mt. St. Joseph's Academy, Brighton.

Mrs. Walter J. Whelan, is chairman of a committee including Mesdames Thomas A. Dolan, Thomas J. Walsh, Edward F. Timmins, John J. Hickey, William H. Muldoon, Lawrence Early, Malcolm McBride, John J. CLEAR FACE OF 'CHRISTMAS RUSH' STRAIN AND LINES WITH NEW IRRADIATED CREAM

Losing or Acquiring Curves With the Stars

IT DOESN'T REALLY make any difference whether your problem is taking off a few extra pounds or putting them on — exercise is the thing. If your neck is thin there is nothing better than this circular swing movement for filling in those exasperating hollows and making the throat line lovely again. Helen Mack, above, Hollywood player demonstrates how easily it is done. Just stretch the neck and muscles in a rotating exercise from left to right and then from right to left again.

Perfect Defense Could Have Defeated This 3-Notrump

By Josephine Culbertson

Today's hand was possibly the worst-defended hand I have seen in a long while, but I am inclined to think that anyone can win at the game with good cards."

Mrs. Culbertson will be very glad to answer questions on bridge. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address your questions to Josephine Culbertson, in care of this newspaper.

South, Dealer.
Neither side Vulnerable.

	♠10763 ♡1065 ◇K10732 ♣8
♠Q8 ♡943 ◇J5 ♣KJ10752	North West East South	♠KJ5 ♡AQ8 ◇9864 ♣643
	♠A942 ♡KJ72 ◇AQ ♣AQ9

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2NT	Pass	3◇	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's two notrump bid of course was a slight overbid and North's three diamond call also was slightly doubtful.

At any rate, West was on lead. He very brilliantly decided on the club suit, but for some peculiar reason—either because he had never heard of the conventional lead from an honor combination of this type or because he wanted to be tricky, he chose the club deuce; South, to his great surprise, found himself winning the trick with the nine in his own hand. Now, for want of something better to do, South laid down the Ace of diamonds, and continued with the Queen.

When West's Jack dropped, the Queen was overtaken with dummy's King, as South knew this would be his only chance to get into the dummy. He cashed the ten of diamonds—setting up East's nine—and now led a low heart. East ducked this trick, and South, after some hesitation, guessed the situation correctly and played the Jack, which held the trick.

South, of course, knew that he was still a long way from home. He needed several more breaks, to say nothing of a few more errors. He finally decided to lead a low spade from his hand to give West another chance to go wrong. West, who should have been most anxious to see his partner get the lead, for some reason or other hopped up with the spade Queen, forcing, I imagine, that since it was punished only once that he would lose a trick if he did not do so. Not content with having given away a trick on the opening lead, West decided to throw another and led the Ace of clubs. As a matter of fact, his only safe exit-card at this point would have been a spade.

The club lead was won by South's Queen and South proceeded to cash his club Ace and his spade Ace. He then led out the spade nine and East perforce had to win this trick. East could now cash his good nine of diamonds, but he then had to lead his Ace of hearts, followed by the Queen, to give the declarer his last trick.

Thus, South made in all one spade trick, two heart tricks, three diamond tricks and three club tricks to fulfill his thrice no-trump contract, whereas perfect defense could have defeated it two or more tricks. And yet I heard the West player state in a conversation later in the evening that "anyone can win at the game with good cards."

THERE IS NO NEED of hunting a woodpile to indulge in the newest Hollywood fad of keeping fit. A rod—any old rod about three feet long and a pair of strong arms will do very nicely. Frances Drake, right, shows the first routine in this exercise which starts with the rod in front, a hand at each end. It goes with a single count up high over the head, down in back of the spine, up with the right hand again, then with the left and back to starting position.

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE —:— By Adele Garrison

Assured of Baby Faith's safety, Madge cannot shake the fear that some harm will befall the boys or Dicky before they return from the beach.

WAS KATHERINE making some momentous decision in repaying to the letter she had said she meant to answer while she was waiting for Junior and Roderick to come home from the midnight drive to the beach, which I had permitted them to join?

This was the question that raced through my startled brain when her odd flush and fluttering eyelids gave me the intuition that the letter, which she said she had delayed answering too long, was from Hal Meredith.

At any moment I was tense than the present one, when all my fears were fused upon the possible actions of Lee Chow. I should have found much food for startled and apprehensive thought in this idea of the possible answer Katherine might send to Hal Meredith.

For I was pretty sure what this latest letter from the brilliant alienist had contained was another plea that she should break the anomalous bond that held her to the husband who, I feared, had deserted her in spirit if not in fact, and become the cherished wife of the man who loved her so long and so devotedly.

HER OWN PROBLEM

Her decision, I pondered, would affect me closely. But I brought myself up with a round turn. I had neither time nor inclination at the moment to consider Katherine's problem, or indeed my own save as they involved the safety of my children and my husband.

Having made sure that Baby Faith was safe and could be in no possible danger for the remainder of the night, I was wild to get down to the lower floor and keep watch for the return of the gay party which had driven to the beach by moonlight.

"As always you hearten me immeasurably," I told her. "I am glad you were awake, and that I haven't it on my conscience that I roused you out of sleep."

"My dear, stupid child!" she said affectionately. "So you forget that I am a trained nurse, who can turn sleep on and off as you would a faucet? You need never be afraid of waking me. I can be asleep again in five minutes, if I choose."

It was no idle boast. She has proved it more than once in our life together. Lillian is another who, in her own expressive language can "wake with the fire alarm slide down the greased pole dressing on the way, and tumble back into bed again sound asleep before the hay gaze under the weight." I envy them both this facility, born of long training. Sometimes I can emulate it, but not always.

THE WAIT

"I'll just lock this door now," Katherine went on, as we bade her good night. "I'll be right here, so the boys won't have to wait when they come up."

"I shall bring them up myself," I said firmly, and my father waited until we heard Katherine turn the key in the lock before expostulating with me.

"My dear child!" he said then. "You don't mean that you are going to sit up for those children do you? I cannot permit it. You are altogether too fatigued. I myself will sit up for them."

"Go into your room now, and go to bed. I will go over the house at once and see that every door and window is secure, so you need not be at all nervous. And you know that the boys are perfectly safe with the Underwoods, Mr. Veritzen and Mrs. Arlen. They are in the biggest and safest car of all, and Otto is a wonderful driver."

"IF THEY EVER COME BACK"

"Yes I know the truth of everything you have said," I returned, then added obstinately, "but I can't help it, father I cannot sleep until those children and Dicky come back safely again."

"Very well!" My father capitulated suddenly. "I will take you down stairs. But isn't there some way that you can lie down until they get back?"

"Of course there is," I told him. "The couch hammock on the screened veranda overlooking the driveway is a perfectly comfortable bed. The night is unusually warm for this time of year—one of our wonderful Long Island summer nights—and there are plenty of blankets. I shall rest beautifully there, and be able to keep watch until they come back —if they come back." I added with a sudden little sob in my voice.

Adaptable 'At Home' Frock

By MARIAN MARTIN

9215

Smart housewives who like their "at-home" frocks to be pretty and at the same time comfortable and convenient, will appreciate the ease with which this coat-like dress may be slipped on. There are no buttons to fasten, rather the belt slips through a slash at the right side of the waistline and ties with the left belt into a nice little bow at the back. And it's easy to iron, too, for it may be spread out flat on the board! Ruffles add a bit of flattery around the neck—emphasize the slenderizing surplice lines of the bodice—and give a touch of frivolity to the trim sleeve cuffs. A convenient patch pocket adorns the slim skirt.

Pattern 9215 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 requires 4⅞ yards 36-inch fabric and 2¼ yards ready made ruffling.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Turn to our winter fashion book for page after page of smart, winter styles for children and grown-ups, every one of them designed by Marian Martin, our Pattern Editor. Order your copy today! Price of book 15 cents but it costs only ten cents when ordered with a pattern. Pattern and book together, 25 cents.

FONDANT

2 cups sugar; 1¼ cups water; 2 tablespoons light corn syrup; 1 teaspoon vanilla.

[illegible]

CREAM MINTS

[illegible]

VARIATION

Coffee: Substitute strong coffee for water in making the syrup.

Maple: Substitute 2-3 cup maple sugar for corn syrup and reduce water to ⅓ cup.

Brown Sugar: Use one cup each granulated and brown sugar and omit corn syrup.

Lemon or Orange: Mix the juice and grated rind of the lemon or orange and spread on platter before pouring hot syrup on it. Omit vanilla. Long beating is not [illegible] since the fruit juice and syrup do not readily combine.

Peppermint or Wintergreen: Add a few drops of peppermint oil or of wintergreen and proper green coloring to the fondant mixture.

Knit a Handsome Scarf for Him

IT'S DONE in an interesting roughish [illegible] and lined and though it's shown here in [illegible], making a very fetching evening accessory, it may be [illegible] colorful winter days. Good Posture

Question: I am a constant reader of your column and would appreciate your advice very much. I am quite tall for my age and am large boned. I have a medium sized waistline but my shoulders are exceptionally large for the size of my body. I have quite a lot of excess flesh that I would like to lose. But the question is how. Would you recommend exercise or diet? Since I am a stage entertainer I cannot afford to have large shoulders carry excess fat. Dolores V., Everett.

CRIME IMPERILS OUR CIVILIZATION

'An Even Greater Menace Than War, Says R. W. Child

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD
Noted Author and Former U. S. Ambassador to Italy

Crime?
War?

Last week the two front page stories from Washington had to do with the nation's suppression of crime and the Nye campaign to take the profit out of war.

Both are aimed at vicious evils—however, war may menace the world, crime menaces the world more. War may destroy civilization because while there may be, the FACT is that man, animals and vegetables are natural pictures of CONFLICT and the urge to express conflict may take on such dangerous weapons that VICTOR and VANQUISHED may both see civilization disappear.

R. W. Child

CEMENT OF CIVILIZATION

Sure, however, is the fact that LAWS and ORDER are the cement of CIVILIZATION. Destroy that cement and destroy the RULES and you destroy CIVILIZATION which is MAN'S GAME.

How?

Not by the police, the courts, the reformers, or the lawyers—but by the legal profession. The present wave against crime was started by the prosecuting attorneys which produced in 1925 a SHOCKING presentation of FACTS. On these startling facts a national organization was formed by Attorney Charles Hughes Holley, Newton Baker, Elihu Root, Taft and others. That action was taken over by President Hoover who formed an OFFICIAL crime commission. I was myself invited sight when it stepped into PROHIBITION

A COMMANDMENT

EVERYONE KNEW IT WOULD be because prohibition was not a LAW it was a COMMANDMENT and NO democracy ever issued any COMMANDMENT and ENFORCED IT.

That is one trouble with CONCLAVES and COMMISSIONS and COMMITTEES on crime. They do not exist to crimes against PERSON and PROPERTY is more than 100 dogs.

And the other trouble, as made evident in that the reformers are often more concerned with the welfare and reform of the CRIMINAL than with LAW ENFORCEMENT AND THE VICTIMS OF CRIME AND THUS OF THE CONTINUANCE OF ORDERLY CIVILIZATION.

THE REASON FOR CRIMINAL LAW is not to round up people, analyse mental facts and how to reform you—if those were the reasons

COST TAG TO CRIME

The reason for criminal law IS TO TIE A COST TAG ONTO VIOLENCE AND DISORDER AND COLLECT THE PRICE. PROVE TO OUR YOUTH THAT CRIME DOES NOT PAY.

When crime costs more than it does the easy SOFT and GOOD WAY.

We have allowed to grow up a system by which POLITICIANS and trade MARIONETTE OFFICIALS are PARTNERS of CRIME PROTECTORS and STOCKHOLDERS in crime.

THE POLICE CATCH 'EM AND THE COURTS LET 'EM GO."

We have built up a system of SCARING WITNESSES INTO SILENCE AND BLACKMAILING HONEST BUSINESS INTO TRIBUTE

Exactly what the mafia did to Italy.

And if the LEGAL PROFESSION does not take the lead in making this GLOBAL CRIME PROBLEMS—decentralized from any worthy efforts to find out JUST WHY JENNIE JOINED THE COAL CAR then the PEOPLE GENERALLY WILL HAVE TO STEP ON THE LAW SYSTEMS OLD FASHIONED HEELS AND ON ITS SQUARE, SQUEAKY TOE.

When there is a fire in a ROTTEN FIRE DEPARTMENT that won't come because it is not because of the CAUSES OF CONFUSION wife unfaithful," but men since the cave days have not felt that way about it.

TODAY -:- By Arthur Brisbane

The poet was killed when he refused to write a letter telling Duke's wife he did not love her. Foolish perhaps, but 34-year-old university student Duke, 34-year-old military inspector, will now be tried for alleged embezzlement of $1800 city funds. Troubles rarely come singly.

Again, please note that this day, December 17, is the 31st anniversary of the Wright brothers first flight at Kitty-Hawk, first heavier-than-air plane flight on earth.

The airplane makes it possible for a small nation to destroy the cities of the greatest nation without warning, as a dwarf with a pistol might kill the strongest man. Airplanes make it possible for Europe or Asia to strike suddenly at this country, and wipe out New York, San Francisco, Boston or Washington, D. C.

If the blow must come, it might as well begin with Washington, D. C., where several gentlemen need to be awakened from sweet dreams of security.

Charles V. Millar of Toronto died in 1926, leaving his $500,000 to the Toronto mother "giving birth to the most children in the 10 years following his death." The Toronto stipulation bars Mrs. Dionne and her quintuplets.

Mrs. Matthew Kenny [illegible] the "many babies $500,000 race," having given birth Wednesday to her 11th child since 1926, an average of almost two per year.

Your heart goes out to Mrs. Grace Bagnato, Toronto court interpreter, who on Saturday produced a boy, her ninth, since 1928. Brave Mrs. Bagnato now has had 22 children altogether, 13 of them before this race started, and they do not put a heavy handicap. What would Mussolini give for her, as an example.

It is a fine thing to have 22 children, or 11 children in six years, but it is even more important to have one extra good child at your leisure, as did Olympias, mother of Alexander the Great. She had only one, but that was enough.

Major Casey, of the Du Pont company, thinks that cities may be visited by "aerial torpedoes controlled by radio" in the next war.

Already airplanes without pilots have flown by radio control. It should not be difficult to direct torpedoes in the same way.

If other nations are to use such weapons against us, and they will, if they find it feasible and necessary, it is to be hoped that somebody in the United States will arrange to make them for Uncle Sam, even though it should be necessary to leave a little of the profit in armament making.

Flying torpedoes, directed by radio, would be convenient to send against invading ships and airplanes.

It is possible to be a military hero, and also a traitor, as a bull-terrier may be a good wolf-fighter and subsequently kill sheep.

Another British officer, gentleman and war hero" is on trial as a spy. While "in the service of His Majesty the King" he offered to sell his Majesty's war secrets to a chemical company. One thing about the British, they praise a man and will jail him, if guilty, "hero, or no hero."

In her minister to the United States, W. O. Herridge, Canada appears to be represented by one who thinks, and speaks out. At Ottawa, with Canadian dignitaries listening, he said:

"I would throw over our economic system in a flash if I thought there was a better one available.

"High finance cannot expert us to admit that it has a monopoly of intelligence."

Think of that earth-shaking iconoclasm. Mr. Herridge actually thinks there was something wrong with the old system.

Wise King George of England knows which way the winds are blowing. Friends wanted to give him, by subscription, a fund which cost no $150 000. He thanked them said he could get along well with his old sailing boat, and advised that the $150,000 be applied to people out of work." That kind of king stays on his throne.

The Marquess of Donegal tells the London Sunday Despatch that Chancellor Hitler, flying over East Prussia, was attacked with gun fire from another airplane that fled at high speed after missing.

Perhaps that did not happen, but it might happen.

BOSTON MONDAY DEC. 17 1934

This Is Life

by ROBERT E. ROGERS

Even if the slump in engineering and architecture proves the Technology man was inside tip publicity for the undergraduate activities ought to be done by paid space, with the boughten advertising agencies or with the newspapers of business and finance, of course. At Harvard, there was a period a few years ago when every time the Tech Engineering News appeared, the corresponding undergraduate publication of the country the sun rose at the first gate would be filled with stuff deliberately intended to make the current issue look dull and dismal in comparison. Following the issue The inventive

Robert E. Rogers boys did things with perpetual motion—at least it purported to be perpetual—with photo-electric cells that made machines do flip-flops and sing songs and make change and all that sort of thing, to a brisk accompaniment of 25 cent pieces ringing up on the cash register.

But since the T. E. N. has gone serious and highbrow the advertising genius of the Institute has revealed itself chiefly in the devices to attract curious girls and their swains to the dances given by the various organizations

Lots of Spor:

There was the dance when the girls' escorts paid for their admission by weight. There was one when the tax was graduated spectroscopically according to the color of the gal's hair.

There was one, recently, when the physical assets of the young ladies were evaluated in terms of the chemicals that go to make up the human body the whole girl being usually assessed at less than a dollar on the hoof.

The machine that analyzed the ladies' chemical constituents was awe inspiring, but its chief utility was to ring up the totals on a kind of cash register.

The other evening, however, the boys went in for a true-false intelligence test to show whether the college girl or the non-college girl would make the best home-maker.

Girls were set at answering a series of questions so artfully devised that any lass with intelligence should have been able to answer yes and no in the proper places, whether she knew anything about the subjects or not.

The method was simple. If a question looked perfectly idiotic, the chances were that the answer was "true" but if it seemed reasonable, "false."

The answers proved that the college girls won by a nose, so to speak, probably being accustomed to the absurdities of such tests while the non-college girls cool their ears more coarsely.

The two top grades were won by a Wellesley girl and a Simmons girl respectively—the Simmons girl probably having an unfair advantage—but as a group the Boston Teachers' College students seemed best adapted for matrimony and home making.

Which confirms a kind of suspicion I have long had that a lot of our younger teachers ought to be at home studying vitamines and making love of husband instead of out in the great world teaching mathematics and the philosophy of economics.

Useful Knowledge

But I suspect that the answers to the test depended not so much on a girl's formal education as on the kind of home she was brought up in and the kind of mother she had.

A girl can pick up a lot of specific and useful knowledge around the home in the intervals of studying quadratics and Latin, while the office girl who rushes off at 7 in the morning may frequently not get home until the housework is all done and nothing is left to do except make the bed and fall into it.

Personally I do not think it was much of a test. What the management should have had was mass a battery of refrigerators and gas stoves at the entrance doors and ask each girl to toss up a quick and hasty breakfast for her escort.

Of course, that sort of thing rather makes partying an occupational hazzard, but at least it would have given the boys a real and practical line on the girls.

Many a man who may know (out of a book) that you can remove crayon from wallpaper with cornstarch or benzine, might fall on her laboratory work with a cornstarch pudding or a dry-cleaning job.

Forget It, Strikers Tell Union Leader

Ordered Out

ORGANIZER IN SOUTHBRIDGE IS OUSTED

Southbridge, Dec. 17—Closing of the Hamilton Woolen Mills for liquidation, because of the strike, resulted today in a union organizer being ordered out of town by workers in the plants of the Southbridge Finishing Company and the Sturbridge Finishing Company.

Strike talk has been prevalent at these plants for some weeks, but when J. William Clark of Providence, organizer for the finishing end of the textile industry, arrived and urged workers to insist on their demands, the workers told him to go home and "forget there has been any strike talk."

Plainly worried at the flat decision of the Hamilton Woolen Mills management to go out of business rather than submit to demands of the strikers there the finishing company workers told the organizer they will themselves treat with their managements.

Again today, Richard Lennihan president of the Hamilton Woolen Mills, reiterated that the mills would remain closed.

"There are probably 50 per cent of the people of Southbridge who think the closing down is a bluff," he said, "but I can assure you it is no bluff. What I said at the hearing Friday I positively mean. Nothing has been done yet toward getting out, but there will be a meeting of the board of directors in Boston on Tuesday."

In contrast with last week, there were no pickets at the mills today for the first time since the strike started and yesterday, in practically every church in the town, prayer services were held that the Hamilton Company would continue operations here.

Nearly 1000 workers and their families would be left stranded in the town without means of livelihood, and the various business enterprises would find themselves without a market.

A petition is to be circulated today for presentation to President Lennihan. It is expected that practically every person in Southbridge will sign

YAWNER GASPS WISH FOR CHRISTMAS

By Associated Press

Round Grove, Ill., Dec. 17—A Chicago neurologist has joined with county doctor, H. L. Pettit, in an attempt to stop Mrs. Harold McKee's marathon yawning.

And, if the opinions of Dr. Pettit are correct, they have months to effect a cure for one of medical science's strangest maladies before the patient is an any critical danger.

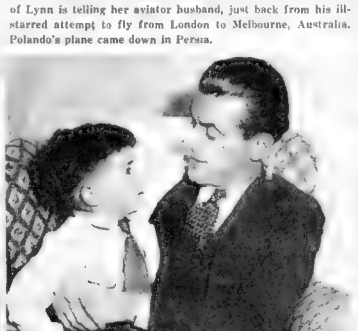
Dr. Pettit said today that with the relief produced by opiates during sleep, Mrs. McKee could, for months, continue to yawn from eight to 12 times a minute without endangering her life.

Mrs. McKee, who has entered her second week of yawning, made a Christmas wish today that her chronic tubercular husband and diabetic son, Russell, 10, may be cured. Then, as an after thought, she asked between involuntary gasps that her yawns cease.

POLANDO REPORTS TO THE "BOSS" AND JACK, JR.

MRS. POLANDO JOHN POLANDO

"What do we care about any old 'air derby' prizes or about how much money you didn't win? We've got you home, and you're safe and sound—my darling!" That's what Mrs. John Polando of Lynn is telling her aviator husband, just back from his ill-starred attempt to fly from London to Melbourne, Australia. Polando's plane came down in Persia.



JOHN, JR. JOHN POLANDO, SR

"Persians? Son, those guys are worse'n Comanche Indians. When you grow up you can go there and put the bee on 'em. Yessir, they locked your daddy up in a dirty jail, just as if he hadn't already had hard luck enough merely falling into their no-good country." Flier John Polando tells John, Jr., all about that London-Melbourne air race. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Polando Back Home Again Tells of Jail Stay

With hardly more than sad memories and plans to sue Persia, John L. Polando noted Lynn aviator, was back in his Lynn home today.

Polando and Jack Wright of Utica, N. Y. who were forced down in Persia during the London-Melbourne air race, charge that their stay of 18 hours in a Persian jail was the result of "dumb" officials there.

The Lynn flier learned for the first time that George Bishop, who once wanted to back him on his flights, was in Salem jail in connection with the charge that Mrs. Pauline Crabtree stole $20 60 from the Lynn Cooperative Bank.

Polando arrived home on the liner Bremen although he was without funds. He would not say who financed the boat trip.

They always say dear auntie is pathetic A. B. we are at our wit's ends because everything we think of is so ordinary and what we would like to have in mind is something original, something nobody else has thought of which will be a complete surprise. Well, boys, here is a little trick known as the hobbie or self-supporting garter which Auntie is sure nobody knows about because she invented it herself and has always led a sheltered life. A welcome and handy addition to any modern girl's wardrobe. Auntie has worn a pair for years and found them a great help when being followed by strange men. She has just a few left, boy, and believe me they'll be snapped up by the early comers.

By AUSTEN LAKE

ROGERS HORNSBY, THE ST LOUIS manager who took up blunder as a vocation in life and made a brilliant success of it, has just given a sales-tickling speech to the press, which reads, "The 1935 Red Sox will just foozle out like a dead storage battery unless they find top grade first and second basemen."

Austen Lake

This is strictly advertising copy from Hornsby, calculated to stimulate Tom Yawkey's spending glands and bring him can terning with a bucketful of lovely dollars to buy what Rogers has to sell. Which is Oscar Melillo and Irving Burns, the "top grade" first and second basemen of Hornsby's Browns.

Yawkey has offered the full market price for Melillo and Burns, plus a rich bonus and a herd of ball players. But Hornsby, having caught notions from Tom's free hand spending in other quarters ($250,000 for Joe Cronin—believe it or not, and $125,000 for Lefty Grove) has swelled his asking price to the point where Melillo and Burns seem made of solid platinum, encrusted with pearls.

UNCONSIDERED REMARKS BY college athletic folk have long legs these days. A jury of Big Ten football coaches has found Eddie Casey, ex-Harvard coach, guilty of mis-statement in saying that good college football teams are impossible without proselyting.

Among the Big Ten dissenters, who include Noble Kizer of Purdue, Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, Ossie Solem of Iowa and Bob Zuppke of Illinois, is our old friend "Bo" McMillan of Indiana, who finds that Casey is "100 per cent wrong."

This is interesting, coming from "Bo," who rose from the barbarian age of college football when it was legitimate to hire local icemen and big, blank yokels, and when it was not immoral for a travelling coach to carry his varsity around the country with him in passing from job to job.

Among the interesting folk tales told of McMillan's coaching career is one about Cal Hubbard, a muscular giant who attended Centenary College of Louisiana under "Bo's" tutelage and mysteriously reappeared at Geneva when "Bo" moved thither.

Well, a man need not blush to have run a saloon previous to prohibition, and the morals of college football permit many practices in minor colleges which would be scandalous in high gridiron society.

I know, today, of between a dozen and twenty college coaches, some of whom are the original forty-niners of football and have been incorporated into the legend of the game, who go out and fish for their material summers, with full connivance from their employers.

I hesitate to prod too far into the past of any college career coach, lest many a forgotten skeleton should come clattering out. There is always the itch, when some of the boys go to talking ideals, manhood, character and all such noble generalities to say, "Yes, indeed; I have heard your lecture No. 3 on that, and very uplifting too. But what about those icemen?"

IT IS UNLIKELY THAT PAUL Bowser will expose his new wrestling sensation, the Irish Giant named Daniel O'Mahoney, whom he uncrated on the Boston docks from Cobh last week, to the ungentle assaults of his jungle men too suddenly.

This will take a little doing, because the Irish lad is used to the conventional and refined tactics of the European wrestlers which consist of entwining bodies and yanking and straining until the eyes of both parties bulge like hot grapes.

O'Mahoney will have to be subjected gradually to the American style of kicking out one another's liver and lights and such marvellous flights of athletic histrionics as being hoisted over the green plush ropes and onto the typewriters of the press rows.

There is the Hangman's hold too, which I doubt that Daniel has met up with as yet, and which entails winding lengths of the ring ropes around an opponent's throat and leaving him entangled like a human fly.

These are refined tortures, under the go-as-you-please American wrestling system, which will soon come naturally to Big Daniel, and I trust that he will, in time, add a few inventions of his own to dim the luster of the flying tackle, the drop kick, the slugand-run and skull crussing technique of past heroes.

This clears up a matter of puzzlement in my mind as to just what "alleged assault" means, considering it is one of the niceties of legal expression that is employed when a yegg flogs somebody over the noggin with a tire iron or a section of bed slat.

It also indicates some curious mental reasoning on President Calder's part for suspending Stewart for battering Klein, and letting Klein, who first sledged Stewart with his curved shellalah and opened a gash in his forehead, go free without reprimand.

These mental oddities have been noted in Calder's judgments many times before, viz: When he absolved Eddie Shore from malicious intend toward Ace Bailey last winter, and termed the incident which sent Bailey to the City Hospital with a broken head, a "deplorable accident," yet banished Shore for more than a month.

AT LAST, AFTER A QUARTER of a century in what we authors call the swirling mists of oblivion Georges Hackenschimdt, "The Russian Lion," who lost his world wrestling title to Frank Gotch, who in turn fathered the furies of the modern wrestling primates, has turned up. Georges has just read a paper entitled "Enuty, individuality, personality and nonentity" to the faculty and students of Trinity College, Cambridge, England, having spent the interval since losing to Gotch in studying psychology and twists of the cosmic self. He has written a book on the subject, has not seen a wrestling bout for 20 years, and lives in a villa at Nice on the French Riviera.

HANLEY, B. U. GRID SQUAD HONORED

By Walter Kiley

The first step in the development of Boston University as one of the [illegible] to be reckoned with in the [illegible] world came with the arrival of Pat Hanley as head football coach.

The second major step of progress is to be taken tonight at the [illegible] dinner at the Chamber of Commerce. More than 500 students and alumni will be at the banquet for the first time in Terrier history, that its squad has been [illegible] declared.

For many of the tutown unbeaten are finally after many years of dissatisfaction, content with a record which is football-wise is being shaped. The Terriers not only won three games and lost but showed improvement in every department over last season.

HANLEY CHIEF SPEAKER

Now a veteran of one year at the Terrier helm, Hanley will be principal speaker at tonights affair.

The trustees of the university are sponsors of the banquet to the players. This marked is a concession. For never before have they shown their outward appreciation of football as an integral part of the college curriculum.

Next year's captain will be announced during the course of the festivities. A sealed ballot was to be taken this afternoon by the entire lettermen.

All past football captains have been invited as guests. Most famous will be E. Ray Speare, captain in 1892 and trustee and treasurer of the university.

VARSITY CLUB FORMED

Several of the present junior class are logical selections as captain. Most prominent are Warren McNamara and George Pattison backs. Dick Van Iderstine and Frank Hughes, ends, and Sam Lourie and Elmer Russell, centers.

A varsity club, composed of former lettermen in the various major sports of the college, is to be formed tonight. The organization which is to be a permanent one, plans to take a vital interest in the welfare of the Terriers.

President Daniel L. Marsh will present letters to 27 players and to Manager Stanley Wearon. Those to be so honored are Captain George Abodeely, Elmer Russel Sam Lourie, John Merossini, Home Beserosky, Charles Gubellini, Irving Gross, Bob Aiken, Walter Gulner, Fred Nichols, Sid Berofsky, Dick Van Iderstine, Russ Lynch, Dick Lynch, Harold Levenson, Frank Hughes, John McEvoy, Ray Maddocks, Bill Croke, Bill Wrenson, George Timson, Wallur Stone, George Pattison, Warren McNamara and Vincent Sandercock.

'Biff' Jones Mum on Tiff With Huey

By Associated Press

Baton Rouge, La. Dec. 17 Louisiana State University officials said today they were attempting to persuade Captain Lawrence "Biff" Jones, head football coach at the school, to reconsider his "decision" to resign. Captain Jones cancelled a fishing trip he had planned for today, but refused to comment on reports of his resignation.

Jones, who had a "run in" with Senator Huey P. Long over management of the football team during the Oregon game Saturday, said just as he was going fishing but today, shooed up at the university football office as usual.

He said had no definite comment about his resignation plans, however.

"I still have nothing to say," he remarked. "I just didn't go on the trip."

HARVARD TEAM IN HEARST SHOOT

Chicago, Dec. 17 -More than 5,0 teams have already officially entered the 1934-35 rifle matches for the William Randolph Hearst trophies.

All records of past competition seem certain to be beaten for the total of competing teams.

Practically every university college, military academy and high school in the nation which possesses units of the Reserve Officers Training Corps will participate the year, seeking corps and national championships in their particular classification.

Never in the past 13 years of the matches has the interest been so keen not only among the students, but the regular army officers in each district as well.

Among the competing units are: Connecticut State College, University of Maine, Bangor, Me. High School, Harvard University, Boston University, Massachusetts State College, Mass. Institute of Technology, New Bedford High School, Rhode Island State College, Northeastern University.

Eagle Anchored in Mud With Track Unfinished

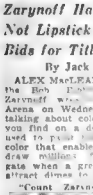
Mr. Boston Says:—

Zarynoff Has Color Not Lipstick Kind Bids for Title

By Jack Conway

ALEX MacLEAN, who will stage the Bob [illegible] Zarynoff [illegible] at the Arena on Wednesday night, was talking about color. Not the kind you find on a doll's lips or that used to [illegible] color that enables one athlete to draw millions [illegible] gate when a greater star cannot attract dimes to the box office.

"Count Zarynoff has color," [illegible] from the rank and file of wrestlers in the way he does things in the ring. He comes bounding down the aisle. Instead of climbing the ropes he vaults over them. This is easy for him to do as he was a famous horseman in Russia. He was a member of the Czar's private guard, and was lucky to escape with his life when the blow-off came.



Mr. Boston

"The Count bounces over his opponents and leaves them groping at the ropes while he parades on the other side of the ring. He has never weighed more than 185 pounds but he has given Gus Sonnenberg and Ed Don George their hardest battles.

"I never thought McCoy would meet him Ribbon' in is danger of losing his title Wednesday night.

"McCoy has color of a different kind. He looks like a cave-man when he sweeps into action. One would not believe he had been a scholar at Holy Cross. Then he knows how to use the fiving tackle. Next to Gus Sonnenberg I believe McCoy is the best with the tackle. He gets terrific drive behind his flights through the air."

Martin and Russell

MacLEAN forgot to mention "Bull" Martin and "Rebel Bob" Russell as he discussed color. They are meeting in the semi-final to the Zarynoff-McCoy bout at the Christmas Basket Fund show on Wednesday night.

I think Martin has as much color as any of the modern wrestlers. He has attracted 20,000 persons to the Arena during the past two years. The fact he occasionally loses does not injure his drawing powers. This is because he has a style all his own. I get my greatest laugh out of "Bull" when he is suspended on the top rope with his feet trying to find the jaw of his opponent.

Russell is as bombastic under fire as Martin. He raves and rants and does his share of kicking and punching. I do not believe the Martin-Russell bout will be a polite contest, but it should be worth watching.

Alexanian's Ring Future

YOUTHFUL Harry Alexanian of Middleboro, who opposes Honey Mellody of Charlestown in a 10-round bout at the Sharkey A. A. show at the Rickard Recreation Center tonight, was one of many at the New Talent hours at the Garden. He is a good boxer a 1 a first-class puncher. If Alexanian is able to get by Mellody, he will be in line for some attractive matches.

Melody has come a long ways since he quit the ranks of the amateurs. He also has visions of climbing the ring heights, and will make a stout hearted bid for victory.

BAY STATE LOOP OPENS PLAY

The Bay States open their season at the St. Botolph street ice palace this weekend. Needham meets Watertown, Walpole engages Waltham, Boston College High plays Wellesley and Quincy and Framingham cross sticks in the nightcap.

Belmont will square off against the Harvard freshmen on Friday at the Arena in the only other scheduled school hockey game this week.

BOSTON DEFEAT IN NEW YORK AIDS FOES

By Bill Grimes

After presenting the Americans and Rangers with two points apiece as Yuletide remembrances and receiving a Christmas gift in the form of an indefinite suspension of Captain Nels Stewart, the Bruins [illegible] Boston Garden before they [illegible] to the road again.

The Bruins and Rangers crash in the second [illegible] and [illegible] garden [illegible] New York [illegible] bang a 2 to 1 defeat on the Bruins last night in Madison Square Garden. As a result of that setback, Chicago took full possession of first place by virtue of its victory over the Montreal Maroons in the Windy City.

DILLON'S GOAL NETS WIN

Until less than two minutes before the [illegible] appeared to have an even chance of getting a draw with the Rangers. Then Ching Johnson broke up a Jack Beattie rush and passed forward to Butch Keeling. The latter raced down and after pulling the [illegible] defense out of position slipped the disc over to Cecil Dillon, who counted with the winning marker.

The Morenz line did all of the scoring for the Bruins against the Maroons, Jimmy getting a and Mush Marsh picking up three points as the former with two goals and an assist and the latter with a goal and two assists. The great Howie aided in one tally.

The Red Wings were forced to come from behind twice to get a tie with the New York Americans last night in Detroit. Happy Emms, who was sent to the Amerks by the Bruins, scored the second goal for Joe Simpson, who [illegible] was responsible for the Wings getting an even break.

CUBS CLIP EAGLES

The Bruin Cubs pulled away from the Rhode Island Reds last night by defeating the New Haven Eagles, 3 to 1, while the Providence outfit was taking a 5 to 3 overtime beating from the Quebec Beavers.

Alex Motter and Art Giroux teamed up for the initial Cub goal about halfway through the opening period. Cliff McBride tied the game 20 minutes later.

Then Happy Harrott and Gene Carrigan staged a pretty piece of combination play to put the Cubs out in front again early in the third period big Jean Pusie thrilled the crowd with one of his spectacular rushes before he passed to Pinkie Davis for the third and final counter of the game.

The Rhode Island Reds and the Quebec Beavers were deadlocked one all at the end of the third chapter. In the overtime period the Reds' defense completely collapsed and the Canadians ran in four goals.

BEVERLY GRID ACE SCULPTOR

By Bill Connell

A football star who has all the talent needed to reach the heights as a sculptor is Peter Abate, Beverly high, halfback and grid captain this season.

The gift of a bust of his coach, Edward "Bodger" Carroll, to the latter at a recent school assembly, revealed how far up the trail has Abate progressed in two years of working on modeling clay. The bust, made in clay and later cast in plaster of paris, has the appearance of bronze.

Coach Carroll was the first to discover Abate's talent. Carroll, teacher of the biology class in which this Adonis [illegible] was there [illegible] the buds of future talents.

He encouraged Peter to try his hand with clay. Soon the boy decided that sculpture would be his life work. He wrote to Phillip Sears, noted Brookline sculptor, asking for advice. Sears invited the boy to visit his studio, saw that the youngster had talent and for the past two years has helped Peter along in his difficult path to high ranking in the fine art.

Peter graduates from high school next June. He may attend college. He's certain of one thing —he's going to be a sculptor. He has the spark of genius, and the perseverance necessary. He'll do.

There isn't much money in making statues, so Peter has organized a 10-piece band of which he is trumpeter and leader. He believes music will pay the freight for his career as a sculptor.

St. Anselm's Bows to Green Quintet

Manchester, N. H., Dec. 17—Although on the small end of the score, the St. Anselm's Hilltops made a creditable showing against the Dartmouth varsity basketball quintet. The Big Green won out, 41-23.

The locals remain idle until after the Xmas recess with the next game booked for Jan. 11 at Lowell, with Lowell Textile furnishing the opposition.

McGregors Win

The Clan McGregor's soccer eleven of Quincy eliminated the Lynn Riversides from the state cup yesterday when it defeated the Lynn eleven, 3 to 2, in a quarter-final clash at General Electric Stadium, Lynn.

COACH EDWARD CARROLL

A happy moment for Coach Carroll of Beverly High comes as he is presented with a bust of himself, fashioned by grid captain and halfback Abate. The youngster, who shows every mark of true genius as a sculptor, spent much spare time for five months completing the bust. Abate was one of the best all around school backs of the season. He's giving up football from now on, to reach the heights as a sculptor.

PETER ABATE

GEORGE "CHICK" BEAULIEU

Here Abate works on a smaller sized bust of his teammate, left guard Beaulieu of the grid team. This bust is in clay, and even at this incomplete stage is an excellent likeness of Beaulieu. Abate has been working as a sculptor for only two years, but has progressed rapidly. He's keeping alive the traditions of the family, for his father and an older brother are expert workers on granite monuments and memorials.

Stewart Marked Man in N. H. L. Grind

By Bill Grimes

Now that Dick Hanley has severed his connections with Northwestern, I expect President George "Don't Spare the Soap" Marshall of the Redskins will soon release a statement, via Dinny Shea, pertaining to the coaching of the Boston pro football team for next season . . . Coaches of professional football leagues, that is those affiliated with the National League, draw lucrative wages and all agree that the future of the game is a positive certainty . . . And, they are not losing sight of the fact they have no alumni, athletic councils, scholastic requirements or parental objections to hinder the development of their players.

STEWART ON "SPOT"

That's a nice story the N. H. L. is said to come out of Montreal about Nels Stewart being a bad man in hockey . . . In fairness to Stewart, I wish the N. H. L. moguls would list the number of jams big Nels has started during his career . . . From his first appearance in the Maroon lineup back in the fall of 1925, Nels Stewart was a marked man . . . For some years before he went to the Maroons, Stewart had received more money for playing amateur hockey in Cleveland than most of the N. H. L. players were drawing down . . . Then, too, he was the most dangerous player in the league around the nets.

The veterans did not relish the fact that an amateur was making them all look bad . . . so they went after Stewart, and when they put a player's number up in those days, they didn't mess around . . . They gave big Nels the "business" and how! . . . And he came back, and how.

It's Stewart's misfortune that he is a six foot 190-pound giant . . . If he was the size of Cooney Weiland he might not have avoided a great deal of punishment, but he would have had the fans around the circuit with him instead of "on" him . . . Nels Stewart is fully capable of taking care of himself in any argument without using a hockey stick, and I question if he ever maliciously attacked any player with his stick without first being assailed in a similar way . . .

CORCORAN ICEMAN

Bill Corcoran, brother of the famous Freddie, is right winging for Coach Jack Culhane's Cambridge Latin school sextet . . . Bobby Hewitson, who for several years has been trying to establish a claim that he is getting a run-around as an official by the N. H. L., is now associated with Boston Howitt, the hockey broadcaster of Toronto . . . Manager George "Buck" Boucher took considerable comedy out of the St. Louis team when he removed Long George Patterson from center, the play-making position.

There are so many trade rumors concerning the Cubs in circulation that the players do not know whether they are going or coming . . . Bert McInenly facetiously remarked that he had blocked a deal whereby Joe Gilmore was going to be traded to the New York Americans for Percy Ryan . . . Joe Jerwa denied that McInenly had anything to do with the trade, which, he stated, fell through when the Amerks demanded $500 and Dapper Joe for their dexterous Percy.

ACE DEFENDERS

Captain Happy Day and Bill Hollett, Maple Leafs, are the most formidable defense pair in the N. H. L. . . . Only one goal has been scored against the Leafs this season while Day and Hollett were guarding George Hainsworth . . .

Because of the death of his wife's mother, Captain Day did not play against the Americans on Saturday night.

If there is any truth in advance basketball press notices, the original Celtics must have had an enrollment comparable in numbers with the Yankee Division . . . Our old friend, Norman "Dutch" Gainor, will be in town with the Montreal Maroons Christmas night . . . "Dutch" has mended his ways and is rated highly by Manager Tommy Gorman . . . There is not a player in the N. H. L. who is not pulling for the pride of Calgary to stage a real comeback.

B. U. HONORS HANLEY

The Boston University testimonial to Coach "Pat" Hanley, and Captain George Abodely's football squad, tonight at the Chamber of Commerce, will eclipse anything in this line the "intowners" ever staged . . . Leroy Goldsworthy, who starred at right wing for the Springfield Indians a few years ago and who opened the season bouncing back and forth from Chicago to Montreal and finally wound up in London, Ont., has played with nine clubs during the past three years.

John Bernardi, Charles River, Lester "Low Bells" Cottrell, Bear Hill; Willie Duffy, Trapelo, and Fred Lowe, Brae Burn, will open their indoor golf school in the Jordan Marsh Company Annex immediately after the holidays . . . Francis Murray, the Tufts sophomore quarterback, is regarded as the greatest basketball player developed in Philadelphia in years . . . Murray will report to the Red and Blue hoop squad after the Christmas vacation . . . Alec O'Donnell, former director of athletics at Holy Cross, is now a flourishing restaurateur in Worcester . . . Although he may not be the greatest defense man in the Can-Am League, Jean Pusie is by far the most colorful and already is a big favorite with the Cub fans.

Crimson Tide Flows to Bowl

University, Ala., Dec. 17—Only a few days remain before the Crimson Tide of Alabama leaves for the West Coast here Friday on the "Rose Bowl Special."

As a whole the squad is in good shape after a week of heavy conditioning work, with the exception of Bob Morrow, guard. He suffered a broken nose in scrimmage session Saturday.

JAPANESE CUE ACE INVADES BOSTON

By Ed Cogswell

Japan's greatest billiard star, Kinrey Matsuyama, is in Boston this week giving exhibitions and instruction in the art of the game an opportunity the local fans will appreciate.

Matsuyama has played billiards in every civilized country in the world. For many years he has been an annual visitor to United States displaying his skill in the big international billiard tournaments.

In balkline billiards Matsuyama has made a grand average of 844 in tournament play, and in three-cushions has run out a game of 150 points in 42 innings. During the week the Japanese billiard champion will be seen at private clubs and at the leading local public bowling and billiard establishments.

Matsuyama appears at the Twentieth Century billiard Academy tomorrow night. Jo Kroy, New England amateur three-cushion champ, will oppose the Jap star in an exhibition game. Roy Freeman of Wellesley will play Matsuyama at 18.2 balkline.

"Can't see any use for the foul line in a friendly game," remarked a bowling fan to Joe Grant. "Can't, eh," came back Grant. "Suppose you were playing a friendly game of golf. Would you want to tee off 50 yards in front of your opponent? It's the very same perspective."

Frank McDonough with his "screw ball" of many curves still holds the individual string record of the Greater Boston League with 134. Here is a deft for all big, or bottlepin bowlers, coming from Joe Plunkett of the M. P. Theater League, who desires to roll for fun or marbles anybody willing to back their game.

At the Huntington Club, Miss Weckbacker displayed her skill in both candlepin and ducks by scoring 14 and a total of 308 in the National Mixed Duckpin League, and then turned loose on the candles by chalking up three strings in 317, thus putting her name on the board for the Bowlaway rolloff.

Detroit Deadlocks Americans, 2 to 2

Detroit, Dec. 17 (US)—The Red Wings came from behind twice to tie the score against the New York Americans here, and after 70 minutes of fast hockey the game ended at 2-2. Lloyd Gross, recruit from the Detroit Olympics, playing his first game for the Red Wings, scored the tieing goal less than three minutes before the end of the third period.

Preliminary game—Leopold Morse vs. Gilchrist's.

First game starts at 8:15 p. m.

By Bob Allears

Dapper Dehnert and his New Britain Jackaways are in town to battle the scrappy Trojans in a American Professional Basketball League tilt at the Arena this evening. Supporting this feature is a preliminary game between the Gilchrist and Leopold Morse store quintets.

Coach Dapper Dehnert's crew won over the Jersey City Reds last week, the Trojans have been inactive in league competition. Three exhibition games were completed and have done a lot to keep the Moriseys in shape.

Manager Sam Snyder has signed Lou Pick for the remainder of the season. Pick, a youngster from Fitchburg, displayed classy form in the exhibition game with the Norwood Post Saturday scoring 11 points. He may see action tonight at one of the forward berths.

The same lineup that started for the Trojans against the Reds will answer the opening whistle. Captain Russ Saunders and George Glascoe, forwards; Al Kellett, center; Nat Hickey and Dave Banks, guards, comprise the five.

Headlining the Jackaways lineup are Dutch Dehnert, the old Celtics star, and Lou Bender the All-American pastimer made at Columbia University a few years ago.

Tomorrow at the Southern Junior High gym, Somerville, the Trojans meet the James E. Hagan Club sqeesters in an exhibition game. The proceeds go to the Christmas Basket Fund of that city. Mayor Hagan will throw up the first ball.

Two tilts are carded for the Greater Boston Amateur League tonight. St. Thomas and Bunker Hill A. A. meet at the Army-Navy Y. M. C. A., Charlestown, while Presentation and Brennan Club teams are the attraction at Southern Junior High court, Somerville.

Elbie Fletcher and Lefty Tamulis will play for the Malden City Club when it meets the Boston Y. M. H. A. Saturday night. Fletcher is a member of the Braves, while Tamulis is signed to New York Yankee contract.

Werber Skyrockets

THEFT OF BASE BY BILLY PEAK EFFORT OF 1934 IN RISE OF NEW STAR

(Ed. Note—There have been moments of drama and tragedy, pathos and comedy in the fields of sports during the past year. Each day, staff writers of the Boston American will tell of the most thrill-packed moments in sports they have either "covered" or seen during the active year which is rushing to its completion. The seventh is herewith presented.)

By Joe Cashman

The sultry August air was stifling. The Red Sox and Tigers sweltered on the field. The cash customers panted in the stands. Old Glory hung limp from its moorings.

No matter how many times one had seen the unexpected and seemingly impossible happen on the diamond, this was one afternoon, he was convinced, when nothing requiring extraordinary mental and physical effort would transpire.

Yet he had no sooner reached this conclusion than was enacted before his eyes a play which had never before been pulled in modern major league history; a stunt that for daring strategy and perfect execution will ever remain at the top of the list.

The Fenway third-sacker finally drew a walk. Rowe, disgusted, turned his back to the plate. Catcher Ray Hayworth tossed off his mask to cool his brow and squeezed the ball while waiting for Werber to complete his crawl to first and Rowe to resume his position on the hill.

Werber never travelled slower than the first 80 feet of that journey to the initial station, but when he was within three yards of the bag, he leaped into an amazing burst of speed and never stopped until he was sliding into second base in a cloud of dust as the ball still reposed in the catcher's hands.

Hayworth Holds Ball to Avert Disaster

It happened so quickly that few in the park had more than a hazy picture of it. Rowe and his keystone support, Charlie Gehringer and Billy Rogell, admitted later that they hadn't noticed Werber from the time he left the plate until he landed at second.

Hayworth was criticized for holding the ball. He really was the only Tiger awake and smart on the play. He saw the Werber dash noticed the position of Rogell and Gehringer and realized that if he threw, the ball would go to centerfield and the runner continue on to third and possibly to the plate.

The play was and wasn't premeditated. Billy hadn't thought of it while up at bat, but he admitted he had given the stunt considerable thought previous to that afternoon.

It was the most thrilling and surprising individual effort of the 1934 season and it was most fitting that it should be pulled by the most surprising player of the campaign.

At the moment the writer can't recall a player who leaped from darkest obscurity to brightest fame as quickly and unexpectedly as Werber.

He was brought here from the Yanks in mid-season of 1932 to play shortstop after Joe McCarthy had refused to part with either Lyon Lary or Frank Crosetti. And as a shortstop, none was ever worse than Washington Bill.

Werber Knew Little of Shortstop Lore

He was in total ignorance of the simple fundamentals of shortstop play. He'd forget to cover second on double plays and steals; he was forever throwing to the wrong bag; he'd let the ball play him.

He had one redeeming feature, though. He was game. While the harshest sort of criticism was being heaped on him, he was out there every day with his chin up.

This earned him a 1934 contract, but he showed no improvement. He opened the race as the regular shortstop merely because no other club would take him and there won't another shortstop to be had.

Finally the situation at the Fens became desperate. The Sox were doing game after game at short stop. Tom Yawkey pulled out a blank check and waved it around the circuit. Colonel Ruppert weakened. Lyn Lary came to Boston.

Billy Becomes $100,000 Headliner

Werber appeared washed up as a big leaguer. In less than a fortnight he had blossomed into a $100,000 player.

He had been hitting slightly better than Bucky Walters at third. So he was given one last chance at the hot corner.

Overnight the erratic fielder became a peerless one; a .275 hitter added 50 points to his average, a slightly better than ordinary baserunner became the fastest human and most successful sack-pilferer in the majors; the object of the fans' ridicula became Boston's outstanding athletic hero.

Certainly one or the other deserves the rating and both wrote diamond history.

WILSON MAKES KAWAGOE BEST AT TROPICAL

the fifth number here tomorrow afternoon. He is picked as my best bet on the card.

FIRST RACE

FIRST NOTE, FLYING SNOW, GLADESS

FIRST NOTE may be a "sucker horse," but I just can't go past him in searching for the winner. FLYING SNOW finished third behind Headon Home, a right fair sort, in his last race at Bowie. GLADESS displayed high early foot against better ones in his lone start.

SECOND RACE

LIBERTY OAK, FLAMING LIGHT, NOBLE SPIRIT

LIBERTY OAK is the class of this affair. Just a question of him liking the track. The brisk work of FLAMING LIGHT shapes up next best on New York form. NOBLE SPIRIT should take his share in the spoils if started.

THIRD RACE

HOW'S CHANCES, DOWDY DELL, COL. GREENE

HOW'S CHANCES, a sluggish beginner, should be along in time to pick this field. Contention will likely be furnished by DOWDY DELL. The latter is a high-class filly, having defeated the floot Motto. COL. GREENE for the remainder of the spoils.

FOURTH RACE

EPAULET, UNCLE BILLY, CONCHITA

EPAULET forced a bitter pace behind Enthusiasm on opening day. That effort should have put him right on edge. UNCLE BILLY shapes up as strictly the one to fear on the strength of some good Maryland races. CONCHITA figures next best.

FIFTH RACE

KAWAGOE, ALL FORLORN, FLASH DASH

KAWAGOE handled the best sprinters that could be mustered at Pimlico. The clocker reports him on razor edge. ALL FORLORN is fresh off a successful campaign in Texas and appears next best. FLASH DASH was favored over some good ones at Bowie.

SIXTH RACE

FREE, KIRITZER, BIG RED

FREE is good right now as may be attested by his smashing third behind Gesecrest on opening day. KIRITZER, rested since Pimlico, always runs his best race when fresh. BIG RED recorded better than an outside chance.

SEVENTH RACE

FOXLAND BALL, BOOCAPS, YELLOW METAL

Must give FOXLAND BALL another chance. The Houreless gelding was all but knocked down going to the first turn on opening day. BOOCAPS' race was too poor to be true. YELLOW METAL gets the next best figures.

Ringing Up the Curtain on Florida Winter Racing Season

Here they are, off at Tropical Park, in the opening race of the inaugural number of the 92-day race meeting in Florida. The dates have been divided between Tropical Park and Hialeah.

Over 10,000 attended the opening day of racing. Here's a general scene as the steeds were sent away for the first heat. Candescent was the winner, with Gallic second and Free third.

21 RACE HORSES PERISH IN FIRE

By International News Service

Toronto, Dec. 17—Twenty-one valuable race horses perished today when fire of incendiary origin destroyed three stables at the Thorncliffe race track. Loss was estimated at $60,000.

Police believed the flames, which broke out simultaneously at six points, were the work of an organized gang, determined to "get" certain horses.

Among the victims was Ladder, American-bred stallion, owned by Frank Selke of the Maple Leaf Hockey Club.

Chief William Bird of Leaside said there was no doubt the fire was incendiary, declaring:

"I believe it is the work of an organized gang. They started a fire in a row of stables up here several weeks ago, but apparently got the wrong stable. This time they made sure of it."

In an effort to save the prize stock, Neil McArthur, brother of the grounds-keeper, dashed into the burning building but was forced back by the flames.

Ladder, valued at $20,000, was far the most valuable horse lost.

Complete list of the horses killed was not immediately available, but the known victims were, in addition to Ladder, Poets Dream, Kildoon, Canny Ace, White Thorn and Lawful Gamble.

Morning Glory Toil Tunes Tech for N. U. Tilt

There's nothing like membership on the Tech hockey team for shaking one out of a warm bed long before sunup. The Beaver icemen early this morning were toiling away at top speed in the Arena in preparation for their clash with Northeastern tomorrow night at the Arena.

George Owen, who had practically no experienced material at the start of the season, hopes to have his Engineers break into the win column at the expense of the Husky icemen.

B. C. had a difficult time with the Husky forward line, and Herb Goodwin and Frank Parker, Owen's defensemen, have a hard task on their hands.

However, Prof. Clarence M Updegraff, Chairman of the Iowa Athletic Board, said he did not even know that Solem had any intention of leaving, much less that Hanley might go to Iowa.

NEW TRAINING FOR BUSINESS MEN PLANNED

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The influence of the New Deal on business is even changing educational trends. Thus, we find Dean Wallace B. Donham of the Harvard Business School discussing the problems inherent in the present tendencies toward increased intervention of government in business. In his report to the president of the university:

It is the plan of the business school to train men in the business aspects of government. Taking a two-sided view of ... educates ... basis ... service ... ness ... ness ... should ... ing the ... fusion ... general ... order.

Shorts. The most conservative of forecasters admits that 1935 will be a year of good business . . . True, he does not overflow . . . But he does see a spring peak at least equal to that of 1934, and while the third quarter is pictured as witnessing a fairly sharp slump, the fourth quarter forecast calls for a peak above that of spring.

And then he finishes up by stating that 1936-37-38 will be real prosperity years . . . The groundwork, we feel justified in assuming, is laid, in his opinion, and real revival can be built upon it in the years immediately ahead.

The temper of the motor industry is best judged by the exceptional plans made for 1935. According to R. H. Grant, they call for greater advertising expenditures than in several years. New models than ever will incorporate few if any radical changes so the industry may look to a profitable year with volume running close to 1934. From a stockmarket viewpoint we ... meant ... volume ... in profit ... volume could result in some very cheerful news for stockholders.

Shorts. At the same time, motor parts producers, freed of labor troubles and the necessity of making expensive changes, are encouraged by the promise of better profits . . . In 1935 the adjustment of costs which shared profits is a factor not to be lost in the general survey of trade . . . The same volume in many instances is acceptable if lifting net incomes appreciably . . . Steel mill equipment programs, reported, are among the brightest phases of heavy industry . . . It is hard to believe they are predicated on hope alone.

In no ... normal ... must ... ranking ... hope ... current ... ness ... group ... seem ... comfortably ... are 12 ... They are ... Aroostook, ... Burlington, Louisville & Nashville, Norfolk & Western, Pennsylvania, Reading, Texas & Pacific, Union Pacific, Virginian and Western Maryland. It is from these we would choose trading issues.

Chart Chater: The list as a whole seems to have bottomed out . . . Traders with quick turn ideas might do their buying on incremental stops under the loss of last week . . . Intermediate accounts should not hesitate on the theory a reaction carrying prices lower would not be too discouraging over the term . . . Rails and specialties are still the favorites here . . . With the metals in a front place as we wrote last week . . . For supposed invalids some of the textile shares did right well last week.

Curb Steady in Moderate Dealings

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 17—The curb market generally marked time during the last week's dealings at levels although a scattering of issues were able to make moderate headway.

Carrier Corporation and Sherwin Williams were outstanding in the specialty group, both edging up ¾ to new high ground at 17¾ and 88¾, respectively. Pepperell Manufacturing rose 1¾ to 53 and Insurance Company of North America was up ¼ at 53¾.

Sunshine featured the metals with a gain of ¾ to a record high on an initial block of 2,400 shares. Dustless Seagrams held unchanged at 14¾ in the alcohols, as did South Penn at 22¾ among the oils.

SHARE PRICES MIXED IN LATE DEALINGS

New York, Dec. 17—The stock market turned irregular and extremely quiet in the late dealings today after early attempts at rally failed to carry through.

Sluggishness came in the face of the ninth consecutive weekly rise in steel operations to the best levels since June.

Steel shares gave ground, with Scott continuing slipping under the 38-level. Rails were backward throughout, reflecting the $40,000,000 rise in the wage bill coming on January 1. Food shares were for sale. Corn Products lost 2 points and Standard Brands was heavy.

MOTORS HIGH

Utilities were strong at times.

Mining shares staged an early flurry running from 1 to 2 points up. Cerro De Pasco hit a new high for the year. They were affected later by the sluggishness in the rest of the list.

Motor shares were slightly higher most of the time. Blue Chip Industrials like Du Pont and American Can hovered in a narrow range. American Woolen issues were strong, the preferred jumping 3 points, and helped firm up the other textiles. Phillip Morris went to a new high in the tobaccos.

POWER STOCKS

Attention was attracted to several of the power stocks following application of the Consolidated Gas organization for increased rates to take care of a substantial increase in emergency taxes.

Some activity in the metals was attributed to the mild revival of inflationary psychology based partly on the belief that the next Congress, at least, will give this subject serious consideration despite efforts of administration leaders to tone down radical currency talk.

While highest grade bonds have been holding around their best levels in several years, thus indicating to some financial observers that fear of drastic inflation is not an important factor at this time, a few commentators still cling to the belief that an inflation market of a type has been under way since September.

These argue that government spending and the huge expansion of credit are prime ingredients for inflation, that there is little likelihood of the budget being balanced and that final debt repudiation, by way of the money printing presses, is more than a possibility.

Aside from other considerations, however, proponents of the inflation equity prices contend that the general economic improvement is the principle sustaining force in the market. The argument here is that the materialization, in the near future, of more promising business tendencies may well put congressional uncertainties in the background and greatly reduce the pressure for further legislative experiments.

Grains Lower at Close in Chicago

Chicago, Dec. 17 (AP)—Wheat closed weak at the day's bottom level, 1¾-2 cents under Saturday's finish, May 99-99⅛, corn 1-1⅛ down, May 87⅝, oats 1 cent to 2 cents off, and provisions unchanged to an advance of 2 cents.

"WIFE IN CUSTODY" By Beatrice Lubitz

CHAPTER XXVII

In the weeks that followed, Helen pondered over Dirk's advice. Yet away from them, without the constant danger of their intrusion, peace descended on Helen's household and her fears were lulled.

The countryside was on fire; the maple trees in the woods became flaming torches. Helen loved the brilliant autumn color that slowly faded and died with the onset of winter. Each day the country had a new charm. November with its rain and fog spread a soft melancholy haze over the brown hills and bare trees, and coming in from the cold to her cheery living room with its books and magazines was a constant joy to Helen.

Marian came out every week and Belle came out Saturday mornings. By December Helen was noticeably stouter and her figure took on a soft fullness that was enormously becoming to her. Her eyes were clear and her skin radiant. Walter thought she was more beautiful than ever. They knew only a few people at Round Brook and so they had few visitors. They had long quiet evenings together.

They talked or read and on mild nights walked along the black country road by the aid of Walt's flash light. Home again, the log fire burned cheerily in the grate and Marie served hot chocolate and cookies on a brass tray. She fussed over Helen and scolded her husband in the kitchen and her forthright, cheerful voice filled the house.

DRESSES AS PIRATE

Helen was radiantly happy. She read voraciously and Walter coming in at night always had a briefcase full of magazines and books he had picked up. He brought the evening papers and stopped at the postbox for the mail.

They did silly things too alone on the farm; dear, silly things. They play acted with the aid of Anton, who was ingenious at such things; they got up charades and games. There was the night the portieres in the library fell down and Walter dressed himself up in them as a pirate with the brass curtain rings as earrings and the feather duster as a plume in an old hat of Marie's.

Walter grinned to himself all the way into town the next morning. On the train he made elaborate plans for that night. He'd see if he could up a wig somewhere. He'd be Carmen. That would make Helen laugh . . . Must remember to stop in at the 5-and-ten for some beads and stuff.

But when he got to 57th st. he changed his expression and walked gravely and somberly through the salon into Irene's office.

She greeted him from the phone. "It's Stella. She's going to have a kid. Yes, yes" into the phone. "I'm listening. Walter brutally came in. Well, for heaven's sake use your head. Fire her if you suspect her. Oh, stop diminishing yourself! Listen, there've been millions of kids born before yours, yes, yes, and millions after . . . If you're sick, go home . . . Listen, mamma had a dozen of 'em and she was behind the counter twenty-four hours later. Bah!" Irene hung up on her.

NEW WAVES TAKING

"Jerry, it seems," she explained to Walter, "has an eye for one of the girls. My advice to Stella was to fire her although as a matter of fact I'd rather fire Jerry."

"So would I."

"Well, I suppose we can't now that Stella is enceinte. I suppose she just couldn't stand your wife stealing all the thunder. How is she?" Manning fired Franz at last. I've an ad in the Times today for another chauffeur. I suppose I'll be swamped with men. What are you grinning about, Walt? You look like a tomcat."

"Oh, nothing. What are you doing over Christmas? Why don't you come out to the farm?"

"No, thanks. I loathe the country in the Winter. I want to go to Charlestown but Dirk's rather set on going to New Canaan with the Hon. Parents. We'll go to Charlestown, however," she added grimly. "Oh, the new waves are taking. I've got more than a dozen orders for permanents. I think it's a go, Walt. You were right that time although I didn't believe women would trust that vicious-looking apparatus but it seems I was wrong."

Walter was gleeful. "What did I tell you? I'm going to get Dashiell to work for us if I have to pay him fifteen thousand."

"Now listen, Walter, don't be foolish. Don't let a little praise go to your head. You'll burn one woman's head off and we're ruined."

"I tell you, Irene, he's an expert. There's no chance of it. I'm going to take him on. Where's Miss Ginsberg? I want a lot of publicity on this."

"WHEN IS IT ONE?"

Irene shrugged. "It's your funeral. Warn you."

"I'm taking the risk."

"Well, I should hope so! Only go easy. You're going to have a lot of expenses now that Helen is having a child."

She raised her eyebrows. "Oh, really. When I want your expert advice on it, I'll remember to consult you," she snapped.

"I think Stella is wise. It might give Jerry a feeling of responsibility," he said placatingly.

"There's something in that." She seemed to be thinking. "How does Helen feel?"

"Splendid."

"You're not speaking to the public now. I mean truthfully how does she feel? It's rather important."

"I'm not kidding, Irene. She feels wonderful and she looks marvelous."

"When is it due?"

"Certainly, stupid, what did you think I meant, the rent?"

"About the first week in March." She strummed her fingers nervously on the desk.

"I'm going to have a baby," she announced calmly.

"What? When?"

Her face broke into a triumphant smile. "In Charlestown. What did you said about Jerry taking on responsibility interests me strangely. Why not Dirk? For an ideal that he felt was as big as his work at the T. B. Association he'd give the tuberculosis association up, I think. Why not a baby? That ought to be something to retire on. Our son must have the best! That means money. Our son must have the loving care of his mother. That means me! I'll have to give up here. Parker practically runs the place anyway. We'll need a nurse, doctors, larger apartment, playroom, money. Do you see? That means money! My Lord! Why didn't I think of it before! It's all so simple!"

"YOU'RE SO CLEVER"

"It's a dirty trick, Irene."

"What is? To present one's husband with a son?"

"No, to use it to gain your own ends."

"Don't be a ninny. It'll be the best thing in the world for Dirke. This social work is just an expensive fad. He hasn't any right to such a luxury at my expense and now at the expense of our child." Her eyelids drooped. Her lovely eyes became dreamily seductive. "Our child, Dirk," she whispered.

Walter laughed nervously. "You're so damned clever, Irene. Good luck to you. But I do still think it's a mean trick."

"Insect," she purred, "what if it is? In the end Dirk will thank me. Money, child love . . . What else is there?"

He patted her back. "So long, you young thing. I'm in for a siege with Ginsberg. You're so clever, Irene. 'Tis the heavens, my wife isn't clever like you."

She shot him a swift glance. "Heaven certainly granted your wish there," she snapped.

On Feb. 1 Dirk resigned as publicity director of the Anti-Tuberculosis Association and went back to John Kayle as sales manager.

The Rileys were amazed but they were not long in finding out why. Irene was to have a child.

She gained weight and spent hours lying down reading and sleeping. She never was a good sleeper, but now she couldn't get enough sleep. She adopted a languor that had a panthrelike quality to it; she who had been so nervously energetic. She was tender and passionate and clinging with Dirk. She made him feel that he was the bulwark to which she clung. She was careful to stage her little nausea scenes when he was at home and clung to him afterward white and shaken. She felt surprisingly well and scarcely experienced any discomfort at all except when Dirk was at home, when she struggled bravely to bear the pain without wincing.

CAREFUL PLANS LAID

She enveloped him in love and whenever she saw him bitter or restless she came to his side and knelt before him, her strong white arms clasped about his waist, her throat with its throbbing veins against his breast.

"My lover, my husband," she whispered, "my man!"

She went to great lengths to please him; invited his friends in and spent hours with his parents.

She smothered his resentment with her passion even before it had time to smolder. That this would eventually pall on him did not worry her. Then there would be the baby to thrill him and hold him.

Irene had so carefully laid her plans that Dirk was lost before he even knew what was happening. It was exactly as she had planned it that morning with Walter. She planted the idea of a son (Irene knew it couldn't be anything else) long before she actually conceived and she idealized it. Then she sprung on him the fact that she was to have a baby.

The rest was easy. Her health couldn't stand the excitement and worry of the Salem; nor did her health permit the upheaval of moving into a cheaper apartment or giving up the luxuries to which she was accustomed. There was doctors' fees, nurse, a nursery to be prepared. More money was needed.

"I can sell some bonds."

"Darling, help, darling, for the time being, but what will we do when they're all sold?"

"We've got to move out of here and live more rationally. This expensive menage is totally unnecessary."

"You're right, darling, but we can't yet!" Lucky she thought of it. "We've got another year's lease dear. And then, if something does go wrong in childbirth—darling, I don't know that it will, but sometimes these things happen!—You'll need those bonds to turn into money quickly."

ANOTHER WAY

"I know it, damn it. I hate to leave ourselves unprotected."

"There are my jewels," she suggested, gently.

"Don't be an idiot," he snapped.

"Darling, don't be impatient with me. Don't worry. You'll think of a way." She kissed him, then made a path of little kisses down his face and into his neck. She clung to him, her hold stiffening; her body grew taut as steel as she pressed against him.

"I'll have to go back to Kayle," he croaked in her perfumed hair.

"No, you don't dear. Maybe there's another way." she whispered, her eyes gleaming . . .

When, by an amazing coincidence, Kayle again offered Dirk his old job, Irene feigned surprise if he secretly suspected Irene's fine Italian hand he preferred not to think of it.

HAUPTMANN IS BENEFITED BY STATE HASTE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

"I want there," is Hauptmann's contention.

He admits having possession of Lindbergh ransom money at the time he was arrested but that is as far as he will go in incriminating himself.

The State of New Jersey, however, is reported to have located a new witness or two whom they will spring at the Hauptmann murder trial next month in an effort to prove their charge that he was at the scene of the crime.

Millard Whited, a back country New Jersey logger, is the most specific witness along this line thus far.

IDENTIFIES HAUPTMANN

Whited, who at one time had a farm adjoining the Lindbergh estate at Hopewell, claims that on two occasions shortly before the kidnaping he had seen Hauptmann within a couple of miles of the Lindbergh home. He declared the stranger he saw in the neighborhood twice between February 15, 1932 and February 27 was Hauptmann. The Lindbergh baby was abducted on March 1, that year.

Testimony to this effect was given under oath by Whited at the Hauptmann extradition hearing in a Bronx county court. Whited identified Hauptmann out from the witness stand. He made it even more specific. At the suggestion of Attorney General David T. Wilentz of New Jersey, Whited left the stand, walked to defense table, and placed his hand on Hauptmann's shoulder.

On both occasions, Whited said, he had a good view of the stranger. Once Whited was driving his automobile and saw the stranger alongside the roadway, only a few feet away. The second time Whited was in his struck and the stranger stood by to let him pass.

DEFENSE SCOFFS AT HIM

The defense scoffs at Whited's testimony. At the extradition hearing the defense produced three witnesses who lived near Whited in New Jersey, and who knew him well. They stated his reputation for veracity and honesty was bad."

Legal opinion, and the best deceptive minds as well, have been of the opinion that it might take more than Whited's testimony to convince a hard-headed jury that Hauptmann was in New Jersey the night the baby was kidnaped.

Even today there is a feeling on the part of many persons that New Jersey was precipitous in bringing Hauptmann to trial on the murder charge. New York State, which wanted to try him for extortion, obviously had a very strong case—if pure fire"—case against Hauptmann for extortion.

Conviction on the murder charge could send Hauptmann to the electric chair. Conviction on the extortion charge would have resulted in Hauptmann being sentenced to 20 years in jail.

The New York authorities would have liked to have tried Hauptmann first. They were certain any jury would have convicted him on the extortion charge because, not only was $14,590 of the $50,000 ransom money found on his premises in the Bronx, but he had a $20 Lindbergh bill in his possession when arrested.

Furthermore, Hauptmann had been identified by a number of witnesses as the man who had been passing ransom money in the Bronx.

Tuesday: How the exhibits, including Hauptmann's tiny gun, the kidnap ladder and road maps, will play an important part in the forthcoming trial.

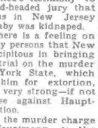
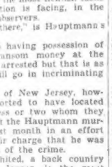
SATURDAY'S ANSWERS



NIGHT LIGHTS and SIGHTS by Manny Shozman

"Kindly Be Happy" . . . that's the message Kennedy's flashes across its entire store-front (you're welcome, Gene Lisnard). I think it is a swell phrase . . . and good advice for the holiday season, or any other time. One thing is sure, the gay spots can help you in "The Pursuit of Happiness" (ah there Geo. Holland, show this to the Hollis P. A.) If you're a man or maiden about town and want your patricians to adorn the walls of the new cocktail room at Cocoanut Grove, along with those of Mae West, Clarke Gable Katherine Hepburn and other screen notables, drop into the Grove this week. That feature ought to be a good "drawing" card. You'll get an eyeful of some snazzy decorations, too, thanks to William Riseman, a Bodenhorn protege. Lots of class to the floor show, too.

Al Molet, who is doing an ace job as executive at the Touraine, is laying deep-dyed plots for the holiday season, and aims to set up a record of 100 per cent for enjoyment to patrons. Wise ones will book now. Club Touraine, with Payson Raye and his band, with Don Howard emceeing, are still luring the smart ones nightly.



Walter Donahue

After you're through playing with the youngster's toys on Christmas why not step out with the Mrs. for the evening. Too early to think of reservations? Nay!

It's not easy to catch Mr. Henry of the American House Rathskeller for a few minutes' chatter, she's that busy. But there's good reason, she is planning for the biggest holiday attractions this famous spot has ever had. A good looking lad you see side-by-side is Walter Donahue. If you like to see how emceeing or dancing is done step in any night and size up Walter.

What a crowd . . . what peerless talent . . . what a grand cause. Just in case you couldn't be at the Mayfair when the benefit for the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund was staged, let me tell you that it would take a truck load of "Americans" to describe the bouquet all of the stage and night club folks who went to town in the name of Charity.

Where are you going New Year's Eve? Better be thinking about it because it looks like S. R. O. for every night spot in Boston.

Speaking of New Year's Eve, the Boston Frans are all set to properly christen the renovated Louis Quatorze (14th to you) Ballroom at the Somerset on the eve of December the thirty-oneest.

Lou Ashe

You can bank on the National Shawmut folks having a grand time at the Empire Room of the Hotel Vendome next Wednesday eve. There'll be a buffet, bridge and dancing.

The Brown Derby went high on the list of About Ben Adam last night when the club helped to fill the basket fund total by a benefit show. Events like this cannot get too much applause verbally and typographically. Of course, if you were there, you saw how everyone made clap-hands for Lou Ashe, who does an M. C. job that covers the whole alphabet of class in entertaining. The B. A. thanks you Lou and all your talent.

You can put it on record book that Joe Reichman and his orchestra rates the silver cup for their instantaneous hit with Bostonians, who like the dance melodies warm, sweet and smooth. That's why the Salle Modern at the Statler is gay nightly with crowds. And listen . . . watch Joe's fingers ripple over those piano keys the next time your in the club. It's fascinating to watch them in the illuminated mirror.

Paging Mae West . . . paging Mae West. Hotel Essex is presenting for the first time tonight, something brand new in entertainment, "Broadway After Dark," a spicy, over-exaggerated melodrama of the Gay Nineties vintage.

Sure enjoyed the show at the Cascades last week. My personal nomination for zizz in dancing, Jerry the Dirk. They have every thing. That's probably why they are the only white dancing team to ever compete in the sepia in that famous New York Harlem club.

Have you heard Zita, who vocalizes so marvelously at the Bruin-wick Casino? Glamorous girl, glamorous voice. Jerry Funk and his orchestra grabbed a big follow ing.

With folks concerned with Christmas shopping, fussing with home dinners is outmoded. That's why so many are dropping into the Hotel Puritan's Oil Boston room these nights for the good food this place provides, and for dancing.

J. Edward Downes of the Abbott hotels was down with the baseball boys in New York. Many big leaguers will make the Vendome and Somerset home plates next year. Orchestras may come and orchestras may go, but Jack Fisher still plays to a full house each night at Steiben's Rathskeller. . . John Hopkins, ex-proprietor of his own place on Washington street, is at the Touraine. . . Winton Bee's floor shows at the Lido are the kind the round-towners like.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Will Love See Us Through Beaten? Discouraged? Ready to take the count? Yes—I was feeling that way myself ten minutes ago. Then came this—

Dear Miss Robinson—

I'd like to answer some of those correspondents who ask you whether or not they dare get married on a few dollars a week.

My husband made only $12 a week when we started—and I came from a home where the income was never less than $50 weekly. Of course we had to go without a good deal, and it wasn't easy. But it was fun trying to do it, and everything we've gotten since was more precious because we had to struggle for it.

Now he's making $20—and we're going to have a baby Some of your readers might gasp—"On only $20 a week?" One girl friend said to me—"But I want to wait until I'm able to give my baby everything."

That may be all right but my husband and I think a baby is too busy observing its own little world to know whether or not it has "everything."

After all, Miss Robinson, it's how that's seeing us through. And so I'm not afraid.

ROBERTA LEWISON

NOT AFRAID! A few score years ago they started an experiment called "America" on a hunch like that child. Penniless men, starving women, facing an unmapped wilderness with nothing to back them but their own courage and that invisible "Love" which was to be a cooling cloud by day, a warming fire by night. And now? Already the Knockers' Chorus will be getting busy.

"Very pretty and touching," they'll say, "but how sensible is it—really? 'Love will see us through'—a charming theory, but when you get right down to brass tacks, who actually has to do the seeing through? YOU AND I— THE TAXPAYERS. So what right have these two young people to add the burden of another life to OUR burden at a time like this? Taking chances like that is Positively Criminal!"

Is it? And just where would you and I be today, my heartles, if our granddad had felt that way about taking chances?

Mind you, I'm no advocate of reproducing the species, regardless. I do not believe that anybody should be a parent, anyhow. If I could have my way I'd tighten our marriage laws—plenty. And make it impossible for the proven diseased, unfit and criminal humans to mate.

BEST INVESTMENT BY WORLD DIVIDENDS

But I certainly would not make babies dependent on bank rolls. A spirit such as this outweighs millions in gold . . . and is actually of greater and more lasting service to the commonwealth.

One bank failure can wreck such a home that is built on cold cash —but no power on earth can lick the forces that is based on brave, intelligent faith and devotion.

As for the Taxpayer—even if what you say were true, and we would have to carry the burden of this new life, it would be the swellest investment we could make and produce the fattest dividends.

But I'm not granting that it's true. I'M a hard boiled fifty-one, and I've seen plenty of things go over in this curious world. I respect the power of money—the power of position—the power of trained brains.

BUT I'VE SEEN FAITH WORK GREATER MIRACLES THAN ALL THESE THINGS PUT TOGETHER. And I'm telling you—

If these young people believe that Love will see them through —IT WILL!

And if YOU don't believe it—read your history. Those homeless, penniless men and women who started this country achieved more BY SHEER FAITH than we're accomplishing today with our billions. Laugh that off if you can!

CADILLAC MAN NOTES UPTURN

Conviction that the present upturn in business will continue during 1935 and with even greater acceleration as public confidence is restored, was expressed today by J. C. Chick, of Detroit, in Boston to address a meeting of Cadillac and LaSalle distributors.

J. C. Chick

Chick said:

"Practically every barometer of trade reflects the better conditions, an encouraging outlook that has been borne out on my present coast-to-coast trip.

"In every city where I stopped business leaders have told me that their community has been inoculated with this new spirit of optimism and courage.

"It is gratifying to find that business conditions are so definitely on the upgrade in Boston and throughout this immediate district.

FAST TO OPEN NEW MARKET

The First National Stores, Inc., will open another new, modern market tomorrow at 419 Baker st, West Roxbury. The end of the year will see more than 450 stores of this combination type in New England, in addition to 23 grocery stores.

The store is 27 feet front and 85 feet deep, the average size for most markets, although some recent more floor space, as the market in Newton Center, which has been forced to seek larger quarters and has been moved from Centre st to Langley road, which is 1000 square feet greater space.

The first new combination market was opened by First National in 1926 on acquisition of the Arthur E. Dorr Company, which became the nucleus of the meat division of the chain.

These markets carry full stocks of meats, fish, fresh fruits and vegetables, dairy products and bakery goods, in addition to staple and fancy groceries.

Two of these new markets have recently been opened in Springfield and one each in Dalton and Holyoke and others are scheduled to be opened soon at 1427 Center street, Roslindale; at Franklin, N. H.; Montpelier, Vt., and New Britain, Ct.

1369 LICENSING BOARD FOR THE CITY OF BOSTON
December 17, 1934.

Notice is hereby given, under Chapter 138 of the General Laws, that Palazzi Arena has applied for a license to sell intoxicating beverages of the following kind: All Alcoholic as a Common Victualer at 387 and 389 Chelsea Street and 338 and 340 Bennington Street, East Boston District, in said Boston, in two rooms, first floor, cellar for store, of said building.

DAVID T. MONTAGUE
MARY E. DRISCOLL
Licensing Board.

In Board of Street Commissioners of the City of Boston, December 12, 1934. Ordered—That due notice be given, that this Board is of the opinion that, in said city, a public improvement should be made consisting of the widening, reconstruction and construction of Fanesil street, Brighton district, at a highway from Bigelow street to Dunboy street; sufficiently as shown on a plan in the office of this Board, that it intends to pass an order for making said improvement, and that it appoints 11 o'clock A. M., of December 27, 1934, and the office of this Board as the time and place for a public hearing in the matter. A true copy of an order passed by said Board on said day. Attest: CORNELIUS A. REARDON, Secretary.

'Four Deacons' Win Scott Radio Prize

They were two sets of brothers: Edward and Walter Matthews, Arnold and Earl Leonard.

Second prize of $10 was awarded the Musical Farmers, a hill-billy band from Rowley, while the third prize of $5 went to Carlos H. Garrett of Bellows Falls, Vt., a tenor.

Wings Over America

Congress Must Provide U. S. With an Aerial Defense That Is Invincible

NOT many of man's achievements can mark the exact moment of birth with the precision that belongs to aviation.

The hour was 10:30 on the morning of December 17, 1903, when the Wright brothers made the historic first flight in a heavier-than-air machine at Kitty Hawk.

At that same hour today the event was celebrated throughout the nation when virtually all the airplanes in the country took off simultaneously. It was a dramatic idea—army, navy, marine corps, coast guard and civil aviators all aloft at once.

And Eugene L. Vidal, director of air commerce, made an acceptable suggestion when he proposed last Friday to the Aero Club of Boston that the coast-to-coast demonstration be repeated each year on December 17 as national aviation day.

BUT the officials responsible for our aviation must do more than plan celebrations.

Our military and naval air corps must be invincible. And our commercial aviation must surpass the rest of the world.

America deserves and must have nothing less.

Congress, when it convenes in January, will receive the urgent recommendations of the Baker board and of the war and navy departments for specific appropriations for better aerial defense.

And Congress should do more than this.

The air frontier defense committee, representing the Chambers of Commerce of the country, has proposed a really adequate military aviation program—a chain of air bases, each with its flotilla, ranging from coast to coast and from Panama to Alaska, to guard our cities and our possessions.

A TIME will come when America will need such a defensive system. Let us have it!

Finally, civil aviation, impaired and impeded by fatuous measures must be rescued from politics and fostered and developed expansively, not only for commerce and travel and mail transport, but also to serve as an auxiliary to the armed forces in times of national danger.

America will be safer from foreign attack and more prosperous at home when National Aviation Day celebrates the practical fulfillment of these policies.

Wadsworth Warns

ELIOT WADSWORTH, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, on his return from the Orient warns American industry that it faces keen competition from across the Pacific.

New England industries in particular must be on the alert. For the up-to-date textile and hardware manufacturing plants of Japan and Shanghai are invading their foreign markets.

Already building hardware is made in Japan for a fraction of its import cost and sales of American cotton abroad are declining. It is the usual story of nations assuming a commanding place in world trade.

Operating with low cost labor and low taxes it is but a question of time before these nations will have conquered foreign markets as once ours and will turn their eyes toward our domestic markets.

Yet, the internationalists would have American tariffs lowered in order to seek illusory gains for domestic industry, when the real threat is how we are to save established manufactories.

Industrial New England, and all those with her welfare at heart, must work unceasingly for the protection of home industry, the well being of whose workers depends on the freedom of American markets from cheap foreign goods.

Harvard Tercentenary

July, August and September of 1936 will be notable months. They will see the celebration of Harvard's Tercentenary.

Details of the observance of Harvard's 300th anniversary, recently made public, cover a very wide range.

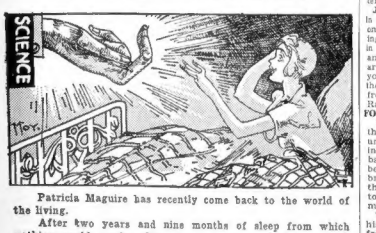
An attendance of at least 15,000 people is expected. It will include dignitaries from all parts of the nation, many of them graduates of Harvard.

The Tercentenary Theater is to be prepared in the quadrangle between the Widener Library and the Memorial Church and between University Hall and Sever Hall.

Its platform will seat 700 persons.

We hope the celebration will be in every way successful. It will mark another notable milestone in education.

"No Invalid Is Incurable"



Patricia Maguire has recently come back to the world of the living.

After two years and nine months of sleep from which nothing could awaken her, she now responds to commands written and placed before her eyes.

The re-awakening of the girl after nearly every method known to science had failed, is a solemn warning to those scientists who advocate euthanasia—the painless termination of the lives of hopelessly incurable invalids.

Patricia's case proves that there is always hope.

It shows that science should think twice before it departs from its true role of saving human life; that it takes a crushing responsibility when it dares to end one.

Problem of Balkans

-:- By Hendrik Van Loon

Blessed be the land without any history. And when Goethe called America the luckiest of all countries because it didn't have any past he knew where-of he spoke. All this of course is against my own interest, for I make my living writing about the follies of those five thousand years, during which we have enough written evidence to reconstruct that great human drama which we know by the name of history.

Hendrik Van Loon

Nevertheless and notwithstanding, we in America are hardly aware of our blessings because we only have some 136 years of a conscious past.

Except for the incidents of the Civil War, our brains are not cluttered up with the memories of lost causes and the manifold wrongs of our ancestors.

SEES NO SOLUTION

Our present may be somewhat lacking in charm, but thank God for a future that does not have to drag fifty centuries of wrong with it, no matter where it goes.

Every morning the newspapers bring a fresh solution of the Balkan problems. Every evening proves the futility of that morning's solution. And every new morning brings new solutions which will be refuted ere twenty-four hours have gone by.

If you ask me, I do not believe that there is any solution. The Balkans probably will continue to muddle along for the next two thousand years.

You know how hard it is in one of our big cities to keep the peace among all the different racial elements, and yet all of them live, comparatively speaking, new comers, and do not live on soil which they can claim as their own. Keep this firmly in mind, and then try to realize what is happening in the Balkans.

THEN CAME TROUBLE

Here was a piece of land that formed the entrance gate to the fertile fields of western Europe. Since prehistoric times wandering tribes from the East had passed through this region, and a few of them had settled down in some of the more remote valleys.

Then came the Romans, to whom all people were barbarians unless they happened to have been born within sight of the Forum.

They quietly and quickly subjugated these masses, tribes, families, hordes, villages or whatever you want to call them, and for almost six hundred years meted out that particular form of Roman justice which remains one of the wonders of the world.

But further tribes pushed westward, driven onward by hunger and a thirst for plunder, and gradually the power of Rome weakened and once more anarchy ruled over the land.

Then came the domination by a foreign people—the most cruel-ly destructive invaders, next to the Huns, of which Europe carries the memory. Then came a number of uprisings by which the different subject nations tried to rid themselves of the unspeakable Turkish yoke.

Then came the Great War, which definitely undid everything which the statesmanship of the previous fifty years had tried to build up.

And now, under modern hygienic conditions, for hygiene has found its way even into the Balkans—the rate of mortality is steadily declining. That means a rapidly increasing surplus of people among all the different hostile tribes which go to make up what we call the Balkan States.

Where are they to go? How are they to live? Where are they to find food and outlets for their domestic products? Africa is out of the question. Every other part of the world is closed to them. In short, the Balkans are a pot that is forever boiling and of which the lid has been screwed on so tightly that there is no means of escape for the extra steam.

The result will be a continuation of more or less violent explosions. We will not be able to prevent these explosions. The only thing we can do is to make sure that they shall not affect our own happiness and peace of mind.

Human Side of the News

Chimpanzees Can Earn Thousands

-:- By Edwin C. Hill

The Globe Trotter of Hearst Metrotone News

Eleven-year-old Joe Mendi is dead—done for by trench mouth and attending infection. His fifteen thousand dollars earning capacity has gone with him, for there is not another the equal of Joe.

However, Meshie Mungkut was not far behind him and, perhaps, one day she will be counted as good as Joe. She has quite a reputation already, has Meshie, and she is not much more than five years old.

They said for Joe, that he was the most intelligent chimpanzee in the world, which meant that of all the birds, beasts and fowls, he was the closest to a human being in appearance and characteristics.

Joe's last three years were spent in the Detroit zoo, where he put on such a show that visitors willingly paid an admission, $18,000 in the year 1933, to watch his antics. Close upon Joe's obituary notices comes the word that young Meshie is on her way to the Brookfield Zoo, in Chicago, from the home of Dr. Henry C. Raven, at Baldwin, Long Island.

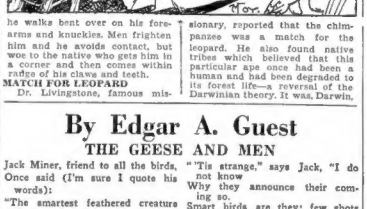
FOUND IN CONGO

The doctor, who is attached to the American Museum of Natural History, picked up Meshie in the Congo four years ago. The baby chimpanzee's mother had been killed, and Dr. Raven brought back the orphan from the tree tops of Darkest Africa to the suburban village just 25 miles from Broadway.

The chimpanzee spends most of his .'s in the tree tops, swinging from branch to branch and, when he does come down to terra firma, he walks bent over on his forearms and knuckles. Men frighten him and he avoids contact, but woe to the native who gets him in a corner and then comes within range of his claws and teeth.

MATCH FOR LEOPARD

Dr. Livingstone, famous missionary, reported that the chimpanzee was a match for the leopard. He also found native tribes which believed that this particular ape once had been a human and had been degraded to its forest life—a reversal of the Darwinian theory. It was, Darwin, by the way, who started the scientists to studying the apes.



Books have been written about specimens such as Sally and Jenny of the London Zoo. At the present time the psychologists at Yale University have a troop under observation and from time to time report their doings to scientific societies.

Lately they have come to the conclusion that "chimpanzee reaction times do not vary significantly from those of human children."

The prize test at Yale, recorded in a motion picture, had to do with teaching the apes the difference in kinds of money, the necessity for work to obtain it, the uses to which it may be put, and the habit of saving.

A mechanical device, similar (o an automatic restaurant, was set up, and chips, red, white, green, yellow and blue, were provided for insertion in the slots for the obtaining of food.

In the Yale film the primates may be seen chinning the bar the required number of times for the various chips, fitting them in the slots for the oranges, bananas or water as their palates dictate and then putting their unspent wealth in a bank for safe keeping.

Few have any left, because the chimpanzee is a spendthrift. However, he has learned that if he has any chips remaining after the closing of the restaurant, the only safe place is the bank, or his brothers will steal them from him.

By Edgar A. Guest

THE GEESE AND MEN

Jack Miner, friend to all the birds,
Once said (I'm sure I quote his words):
"The smartest feathered creature loose
Beyond all doubting is the goose.
The wild geese winging through the sky
Soon learn the paths where dangers lie.
And yet," he adds, "'tis also true
One downright foolish thing they do.
Though swift and certain is their flight,
They honk their coming, day and night."

High in the gray November skies
With honk, honk, honk, the wild goose flies.
The hidden hunter smiles to hear

"'Tis strange," says Jack, "I do not know
Why they announce their coming so.
Smart birds are they; few shots would kill
If I could teach them to be still.
But though death waits for them below
Still must they honk where'er they go."

Thinking of Jack today I pen
These lines for all hora-honking men,
Who, like the geese, with brains endowed,
Still sound their coming to the crowd
And think that noise instead of care
Will safer make the thoroughfare.
Blocked in a standing motor row
Incessantly their horns they blow.
And like the geese, some never will

(Copyright, 1934, Edgar A. Guest.)

Isn't It So?

"The conquest of power by the proletariat is the VIOLENT ABOLITION of the power of the bourgeoisie, the DESTRUCTION of the MACHINERY of the capitalist state.

"WE proclaim openly that our design can only be realized by the VIOLENT OVERTHROW of the ENTIRE TRADITIONAL social order."

The above policies were formally adopted and promulgated as the Communist program by the Sixth Congress of the Kommintern of the Communists Internationale which was held in 1928 in Moscow.

Tragic Illusions

By ROBERT H. HEMPHILL

Financial Authority

THE vast housing project which is to be launched as the Administration's supreme effort to restore prosperity hinges on who is to furnish the money—the Government or "private capital."

Almost our whole so-called "recovery program" is based upon the assumption that there exists in some unspecified, undefined place a vast fund of "private capital" which remains idle for various theoretical reasons, among which are said to be "lack of confidence," and "unbalanced budget," and "unstable dollar," or some other vaguely disturbing inferential reason.

WHO OWNS IT?

UNBELIEVABLE as it may sound after all the grandiose plans, the thousands of columns of newspaper space devoted to exploiting projects designed to restore this vast mysterious fund to activity, the pathetic hopes and dreams that have been built upon the time when it shall come out of hibernation and revive the halted flow of trade and commerce—

NO SUCH FUND OF PRIVATE CAPITAL EXISTS.

It is an amazing, and may prove to be a disastrous, delusion.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THIS SITUATION CAN HARDLY BE OVERESTIMATED.

This great mythical fund, upon which hinges so much of our recovery program, exists only in the UNINFORMED IMAGINATION of our political leaders and teachers.

IT SEEMS incredible that almost a whole intelligent nation, its statesmen and leaders and many of its economists and teachers, should continue to grope around in a fog of misconception regarding all things monetary; should gravely debate and plan for the welfare of a bewildered and stricken nation upon assumptions which have not the slightest foundation in fact—but there it is.

No one, no class in this nation has any substantial IDLE FUNDS.

We have in savings banks and in savings accounts in commercial banks 23,000 millions of savings deposit credits. Ninety-seven per cent of these funds were immediately invested by the banks and are now invested in mortgages and mortgage bonds and other senior fixed securities. Only three per cent of these accounts is money. It is the minimum cash reserve.

THERE ARE NO IDLE FUNDS IN THIS DEPARTMENT.

IN CONSTANT circulation in our checking accounts—the working balances of our individuals, firms and corporations in our commercial banks—we have the meagre overworked total of less than 16,000 millions of credits with which to effect the exchange of the goods and services of this mighty nation.

It is so inadequate that, moving at top speed, it will serve as a medium of exchange for the products of little more than one-half the normal output of our producing and distributing facilities.

We are suffering from almost universal abysmal tenacious ignorance which refuses to be enlightened upon fundamentals so simple that they are well within the grasp of the average adolescent.

It is a stupendous tragedy of ignorance.

We have the producing capacity to supply every citizen with an abundance of the necessaries and comforts of life; we have a highly developed and adequate distributing system; we have ample and willing labor, and we are begging to be permitted to produce and exchange our labor and products for the labor and products of our neighbors, but under our system our labor and products must first be converted into money before the exchange can be completed, AND WE HAVEN'T THE MONEY OR ANY USABLE SUBSTITUTE.

NOTHING IS SO IMPORTANT TO THIS NATION AS THE IMMEDIATE DISSIPATION OF THE WIDESPREAD ILLUSIONS WHICH ARE DIRECTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE CONTINUANCE OF OUR UNHAPPY SITUATION.
